Syrian Battle Continues; Nasser Still President

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli forces had captured the Syrian city of Koneytra, nine miles inside its border and 41 miles southwest of Damascus. Thant told the Security Council, however, that Bull reported from Jerusalem that he had been informed by an Israeli official that Israeli forces were not in Koneytra. Bull reported the Israeli official recommended that Bull dispatch a U.N. observer group to see for themselves.

Gideon Rafael, Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, denied that Israel had attacked Damascus. He said Syria had been shelling Israeli border villages for 36 hours and if it would stop, "our defense action would cease."

Despite agreements from both capitals to a U.N. call for a cease-fire, AP dispatches from the Syrian-Israeli border reported exchanges of artillery barages and Israeli air attacks on Syrian gun positions. Each nation accused the other of violating the agreement.

Nasser said Friday he was responsible for Egypt's "grave setback" in the war and that he was leaving the government. But his National Assembly voted today to insist that he stay in the position he has held 15 years, and there were expressions of support from Iraq and Lebanon.

Vice President Zakaria Moheiddin, to whom Nasser said he would give the presidency, declined today to take it.

The Communist-bloc countries, meanwhile met in Moscow and vowed to go to the aid of the Arab nations if "Israel does not stop the aggression and withdraw its troops behind the 1949-49 truce lines."

the Jews and Egyptian territory of strategic significance, such as Sharm el Sheikh, where Nasser tried to block Israeli shipping into the Gulf of Aqaba. There was no sign Israel would surrender them.

At the call of Syria, which charged continuing aggression by Israel, the U.N. Security Council went into a 4:32 a. m. meeting. Earlier, the Soviet Union pressed a request upon Secretary-General U Thant to contact U.N. observers near the Syrian-Israeli fighting and report to the council.

An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv declined comment on all Syrian reports of fighting.

Exhort Troops

Damascus radio exhorted Syrian troops to "hit the enemy, strike them, let your fire fall on them like rain. Destroy settlement after settlement, burn their positions, shoot down their planes."

The Syrian government announced it was freeing political prisoners to aid in defense. There are scores of them in the politically unstable nation, including Gen. Amin Bafez, former strongman ousted in a coup of February 1966, and his one-time defense minister, Gen. Mohammed Omran.

It was on the Syrian-Israeli border that the Middle East crisis began a month ago. After Syrian-supported raids into Israel and Israeli threats of reprisals, Nasser moved 80,000 troops into the Sinai Peninsula facing the frontier of the Jewish nation. If Israel started war, he said then, the Arabs would set out to crush that nation which was carved out of Palestinian land in the 1948-49 war.

Want to Recoup Policy Debacle Soviet Steps May Reheat Mideast Crisis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Soviet Union, in what appeared to be a last-ditch maneuver to salvage something out of the debris of its policy in the Middle East, has taken new steps which can reheat the atmosphere and lead to yet more crisis.

The resignation statement of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and the subsequent statement of a summit meeting of Communist nation chiefs in Moscow show more than a hint that the Russians outsmarted themselves and that they are now desperate to recoup.

Nasser's statement said that at the beginning of May the Russians told an Egyptian delegation in Moscow that Israel was planning to commit an aggression against Arab Syria. Acting on this information, Nasser said, he sent his forces to the border and asked the United Nations to withdraw its troops which sealed off Israel from Egypt. The withdrawal was a major step on the road to the war.

Evidently, Nasser's statement indicates, the Russians then became worried about how far the crisis had progressed. In a crisis short of war Moscow could hope to make big gains in influence in the Middle East to the disadvantage of the West.

But a war was dangerous to Soviet interests. The Kremlin, by all the evidence, was not ready for a new confrontation which could have been even more perilous than the Cuban missile showdown of 1962.

In any event, says Nasser, the Russians came to him May 26 and urged him not to fire the first shot. The war broke out June 5. In four days Israel blitzed her Arab neighbors into submission.

Nasser said he then accepted a cease-fire because of certain assurances implicit in the Soviet attitude at the U.N. Security Council sessions. The implication was that the Soviet Union would insist that Israel make no territorial gains from the war.

The Soviet Union, which comes under suspicion of having started the crisis that touched off the war, was as eager as any for a cease-fire when the war began to look dangerous to world peace.

But now Moscow was looking at the wreckage of the Arab cause, and with it the prospect that Moscow's prestige would plummet there, to say nothing of its status inside the revolutionary world of communism.

Has the Kremlin called a summit meeting of Communist bloc leaders to add force and the look of solidarity to what it was about to say.

The Russians, who had not mentioned and obviously had not bought the Arab charge of U.S. and British military air support to Israel during the war, came up with a charge close to it: that Americans had been colluding with Israel against the Arabs.

The Kremlin coupled this with a threat: If Israel did intend to keep any of the territory she conquered, the Soviet Union would be inclined to do something about it.

Moscow demanded that Israel retire to the truce lines, apparently meaning the lines of June 4 before the new war started. If the U.N. Security Council failed to take "proper measures," said

Planes Hit Hanoi; Blast Power Plant

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
SAIGON (AP)—Jet warplanes from three U.S. aircraft carriers bombed an electric plant in Hanoi today in addition to targets on the city's outskirts. One plane was lost, U.S. spokesmen said.

The planes, from the Constellation, Bon Homme Richard and Enterprise, flew through a hail of groundfire from the defense network known as the "Iron Triangle." The Communist air force offered no battle although raids were successful, a headquarters spokesman said.

One Navy F8 Crusader was shot down by the heavy Communist fire, the spokesman said. The pilot is missing.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi that three U.S. planes were downed.

The raids against the heartland of North Vietnam followed hard on the heels of a bloody Communist mortar attack earlier today against five U.S. and South Vietnamese installations around Pleiku. The attacks left 26 dead, including two Americans, and 121 wounded.

The bombed thermal power plant is only 1.1 miles from Hanoi's geographic center. The power plant has been raided twice before.

The Crusader was the 578th plane reported downed over North Vietnam.

Aside from the mortar assaults, however, the week-long slowdown in ground fighting continued. U.S. aircraft also flew strikes against rail facilities in North Vietnam and struck widely scattered targets in South Vietnam.

In Saigon military sources said they saw no significance in the lull in fighting. They pointed

The loan was issued through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Victim of Heart Attacks Cardinal Ritter Dies

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Joseph Cardinal Ritter, archbishop of St. Louis since 1946, died today. He was 74.

A spokesman for the St. Louis Archdiocese reported that his doctor said death came peacefully at 5:45 a.m.

The cardinal had suffered two heart attacks since entering DePaul Hospital Monday.

He was named St. Louis' second Roman Catholic cardinal in 1960 by Pope John XXIII.

As archbishop of St. Louis, Cardinal Ritter ordered the racial integration of Catholic parochial schools under his control in 1947. Threats of law suits by a small group of Catholics were abandoned after the cardinal promised immediate excommunication for those bringing the suits.

A native of New Albany, Ind., Cardinal Ritter attended St. Meinrad's seminary in southern Indiana. He was ordained in 1917 and became the first archbishop of Indianapolis in 1944 when Pope Pius XII raised the Indianapolis see to an archdiocese.

The prelate recently observed the 50th anniversary of his ordination.

In planning the golden jubilee celebration, an associate suggested a testimonial dinner for civic leaders, Cardinal Ritter refused, saying it was not an anniversary of the archdiocese.

CARDINAL RITTER

but simply a personal observation.

The cardinal agreed that a Mass in his honor might be said in the St. Louis Cathedral, but vetoed a suggestion that it be a solemn pontifical Mass to which he, as a prince of the church, was entitled.

"I'll have a Mass," he said, "but it will be a very low Mass."

In the 1960s, Cardinal Ritter became an advocate of more communication and cooperation between Catholics and other religions.

In 1964, at the Second Vatican Council in Rome, he supported a proposal that each individual could worship God in his own way even if he were "in error" in the eyes of the Catholic Church, which maintained officially that it was the only true faith.

The proposal failed, but Cardinal Ritter promised he would continue to work for approval of the religious freedom document.

He is survived by a sister, Sister Mary Catherine Ritter of the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Bardonia, N.Y., and a brother, Dr. Harry Ritter, of Louisville, Ky.

Vandals Smash Golf Cars at Wiltwyck Club

Vandals went on a costly spree Friday night or early today at Wiltwyck Country Club, smashed five or six golf cars against rocks, raced around a green causing heavy damage and then went swimming in the club's pool.

John Eusey, superintendent of greens at the club, discovered the damage when he went to work this morning, it was said. He immediately notified the sheriff's office and County Investigator Harold Bowers started an investigation. State Police also were notified.

According to a spokesman at the club, the golf car house was broken into and five or six of the cars, each valued at several hundreds of dollars, were moved from the building. The unidentified intruders drove the cars around the property and used green No. 3 "for a race track" snapping off the guide pole.

The cars were smashed against large stones and rocks on the course, it was reported. Costly damage resulted to the machines.

The club spokesman told The Freeman while investigation was still underway this forenoon that the revelers broke into the swimming pool, where they evidently enjoyed a swim for some time. A blanket and towels were found near the pool and in the water was a snake, but it was not known whether the snake went for a swim or was tossed into the pool by the much-sought vandals.

While in the pool area, someone put on the dome lights and the party was topped off with hotdogs that were cooked on the concession's grill, and candy which was taken from the refreshment booth, a club spokesman said.

Empty beer cans were found on the grounds. Other articles in addition to the blankets and towels found by club employees were men's shorts, apparently overlooked by the unwelcome swimmers or unintentionally left as the intruders hurried from the club grounds.

Damage might run into the thousands of dollars, a spokesman said.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Of the many stories of faith to come from the American Leprosy Missions, Govind Patel is one of the most inspiring. His faith carried him through one of the deepest despairing man can know.

A successful cloth merchant and high caste Hindu in his home town in central India, he was devoutly religious. Then tragedy struck; the symptoms of leprosy appeared. He turned over his business to his college educated sons and daughter, and left home to spare them disgrace. His condition, when it became known, ruined the girl's marriage plans. She and the sons renounced him and sent word that they considered him dead.

For a year, Patel wandered from one holy place to another looking for help. When all seemed hopeless, he heard of the Naini Leprosy Hospital at Allahabad near the Ganges River, where he had gone to die.

A Christian doctor at the hospital gave him hope and dignity for the first time. He learned his condition could be cured and that surgery and physiotherapy would help him regain the use of his hands and feet. Patel, in gratitude, offered his services as a hospital attendant. "There is nothing too menial for me to do to help a fellow sufferer," he said.

Patel also learned of a higher power of healing than that in the treatment room. Each morning he can be seen at prayers in the lovely white Christian chapel and at services on Sunday.

Brightness Flares In Religious Land

By GEORGE CORNELL

AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—An old Talmudic legend says that in the creation of the world, when God commanded, "Let there be light," it first shone forth from Mt. Moriah, the commanding height of Jerusalem.

This week another kind of brightness flared there—the flash of bursting artillery shells. It was a new, shuddering chapter in the strange, world-shaking history of that city and the volatile land surrounding it.

The Holy City, the divided town is called, "El Quds," the Arabs say, which means the same. Literally, the name means the "City of God" or "Hearts of God."

From that intersection of three continents have come the earliest traces of civilized life on earth, and there, according to Old Testament prophecy accepted by Jews, Moslems and Christians, life will reach its finish.

It is a haunting region of colliding opposites, of sea and desert, of mountains and salty depths, of flood and drought, of hot days, chill nights, of the message of peace and a record of war.

Monotheism—belief in one God—was born in that zone cradling the faith of nearly a billion present-day Christians, 13 million Jews and almost half a billion Moslems.

It is the religious motherland of Allah, Jehovah and the Christ, of the Commandments and the Cross.

It has lifted hearts, emboldened principles of justice, inspired compassion, learning and heroism, stirred revolutions, shifted national borders, and also provoked enmities, violence and death.

Armies that moved there today are only the latest in an immemorial file of marching troops of Jews, Babylonians, Assyrians, Persians, Macedonians, Egyptians, Romans, and later, of Moslems, Christian Crusaders and British marines.

3 Rosendale Churches To Join for Worship

The congregations of Bloomington, Rosendale and Tillson Reformed Churches will begin united worship services Sunday, June 18, 11 a. m. at the Bloomington church.

The decision to bring the three congregations together for worship was made by the consistories early in May and recently affirmed at a joint meeting.

After this Sunday there will be no services of worship in the Rosendale or Tillson churches. The Rev. Richard E. Lake, pastor of the Bloomington church lauded the "bold, new step in the life of the Reformed Churches of the Town of Rosendale," noting it was difficult decisions which led to its realization.

The choirs of the three churches will join to provide music for the services. There will be a nursery for pre-school children and there will be a coffee hour immediately after the service provided by the Guild for Christian Service.

For the months of July and August, members and friends of the St. Remy Reformed Church will be worshipping at the Bloomington church as there will be no services in St. Remy during the summer.

Expect 156th to Survive Administrative Shakeups

Officers of the 1st Battalion, 156th Field Artillery in Kingston have expressed little concern for recent Pentagon requests calling for drastic cutbacks in National Guard strength.

Chief Warrant Officer Edio Ferrari, staff administrative specialist at the Armory, told The Freeman late Friday afternoon that his outfit "stands a good chance of surviving."

Injured in Mishap

A Florida woman was injured at 10:30 p. m. Friday when the car in which she was riding went out of control and hit a utility pole off County Route 40 south of Route 296, Town of Windham. Trooper William Fitzmaurice of Leeds said Cherri Lynch, 21, of Fort Lauderdale, sustained lacerations of the head. The car was driven by Gary Hainline, 21, also of Fort Lauderdale. A tire on the right front wheel blew out causing the mishap, according to Trooper McPhail.

At any rate, Ferrari said he didn't expect any decision on the local unit until the summer training season is over in September.

If they were to abolish the unit or cut it drastically it would ruin the morale and the summer camp training sessions would be a waste of time and money," Ferrari said.

Meanwhile in Washington the House Appropriations Committee moved to block Pentagon plans to realign National Guard and Army Reserve units, according to an Associated Press report.

It wrote into a report accompanying $70.3 billion defense appropriation bill a directive to the Defense Department that the proposed realignment "be deferred pending such time as a formal legislative expression can be made" in the matter.

While the language was not written into the money bill itself, the committee's report has the effect of law unless the House or the Senate nullifies it through an actual amendment to the bill.

The Pentagon announced last week plans to eliminate 1,300 units in the National Guard and the Reserves, including 15 Guard units now at half-strength.

The Committee said it had "considerable misgivings over the prospect of disbanding combat units in a time of crisis" and noted that Congress had not been given an opportunity to consider the proposal.

The bill itself includes language to maintain the strength of the Army Reserves at not less than 260,000 and the Army National Guard at not less than 400,000.

At 13, Should She Shave Her Legs?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and my mother will not let me shave my legs. It seems every girl at school shaves her legs and some even slip behind their mothers' backs to do it.

I don't want to go against my mother, but I wish she'd let me. The kids at school call me "Square," "Odball," etc. I pretend I don't care, but I do. And anyway, my knees socks don't go together with all my clothes. So what should I do?

DEAR HAIRY: If you want to shave your legs because all the other girls do, it's not a good enough reason. If you are really "hairy," ask your mother to take a good look at your legs and to be reasonable.

What a pity that when a girl reaches the age where her legs need shaving, her mother is at the age where she needs glasses.

DEAR ABBY: I have been keeping steady company with a girl who is 24. I am 26 and we have a lot in common. We've talked about getting married but that's about as far as it's gone.

She says you never know a person until you live with them, and she doesn't want to get married until she is SURE it will last. She suggested that either I move in with her, or she move in with me for about 3 months.

That way we can find out for sure how we get along. My folks drive up here to see me every once in awhile as they live only 80 miles from me, and I am sure they wouldn't approve of that kind of set up.

Actually, I am not sure I do myself. In a way it makes sense, but in another way it doesn't. Can you help me straighten out my thinking?

DEAR FIFTY: Tell her you aren't that kind of a boy. If she wants to live with you, she'll have to marry you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced man, 56 years of age who would like to remarry. The trouble is, all the women in my age bracket are either divorcees living on alimony or widows living on social security.

Before a man can discuss the economic facts of life with a woman, he has to know her pretty well, and this means spending a lot of time with her.

He can't come right out on their first date and ask if her financial security would be forfeited should she remarry, can he? My question: Is there a shortcut to finding out these things about a woman?

DEAR STUMPED: No. Go ahead and ask her. That would be the acid test. If she has the urge to merge, she'll be glad to talk dollars and sense with you. If not, you can save a lot of precious time, and proceed to the next prospect.

Court Action Looms in Reid, DeFelicis Rift

Court action loomed as a possibility today in Rosendale as the result of what was termed a hectic meeting of the Town Board on Wednesday, when Village Mayor Joseph S. Reid was reportedly ordered ejected from the meeting hall during a heated dispute.

Mayor Reid said he attended the meeting at the direction of the Village Board of Trustees to bring to the attention of the Town Board the importance of calling a meeting immediately to discuss the fire district situation and the town dump contract.

Reid contended that each time he attempted to speak he was ruled "out of order" by Town Supervisor Gerard DeFelicis, who, Reid charged, wanted to prevent "his negligence" from being entered on the official minutes of the meeting.

The mayor said he notified the Town Board that the contract for fire protection in the East and West Fire Districts expires on June 19 and must be renewed. He said the town in the original contract had agreed to pay the premium on the insurance "but never did."

Village officials, Reid noted, are willing to meet at anytime with the Town Board to discuss the fire district and town dump situation, but the town officials have refused to meet.

As the discussion became more heated, Reid said DeFelicis ordered Constable Robert Doyle to remove the mayor from the meeting hall. Reid said he placed Doyle under arrest and also told the supervisor he would be placed under arrest.

According to Reid, he took Doyle before a police judge, who disqualified himself. The mayor contended he told the constable he "obeyed an unlawful law" and advised him to get a complaint in writing from DeFelicis that would explain the charge and order to the constable to remove Reid from the hall.

The mayor said he is bound by law to perform certain duties and if nothing is done by the town towards the fire district and dump contracts he contemplates taking action against the town officials.

It was reported that Reid probably will withhold any action for 48 hours, but if nothing develops as the result of Wednesday night's squabble in the office to which he was elected and that he intends to carry out his duties in the best interests of the village and its residents.

PAW Cancels One-Acters; Reads Eliot

Performing Arts of Woodstock's Little Theatre-off-the-Green will be dark this weekend, in spite of earlier announcements for presentations there.

The third week of performances planned tonight and Saturday of The Bench and Postcards, two one-act plays by former Woodstocker James Prideaux, have been cancelled by PAW due to business commitments of two members of the cast.

The local acting group will present the plays again later this summer when replacements have been made.

PAW's playreading group will meet Tuesday, June 13, at the Little Theatre, Tinker Street, Woodstock, to read The Cocktail Party by T. S. Eliot. At the 8:30 p. m. meeting, excerpts from the recording made by the original Broadway cast, which included Alec Guinness, Irene Worth and Kathleen Nesbitt, will be played.

The playreading group meets each second and fourth Tuesday of every month and is open to the public.

No. 3 Vols Appoint Four To Building Committee

Action calculated to keep in step with increasing developments in the communities of Willow, Lake Hill and Shady was taken Tuesday night at the meeting of Woodstock Fire Company No. 3 with appointment of a building committee headed by Walter Stone of Willow.

Company president Henry P. Eighmey said increased use of the firehouse by growing community groups made it necessary to run fire apparatus out of the station in order to accommodate meetings. During the winter this action could lead to freezing conditions which could put fire apparatus out of service.

Eighmey said that two years ago the Ladies Auxiliary of Company No. 3 envisioned such conditions and donated a sum of almost $500 to a building fund for enlargement of the firehouse.

Serving with Stone on the building committee, charged with surveying the possibilities of an addition to the firehouse for larger meeting quarters, are Arthur Smith, Howard Humphries, and Paul Shultis.

Other business which concerned firemen included a report on the tank truck construction, a demonstration of a new portable radio unit, plans for the annual fund drive, future fire drills and the election of Eltinge Hoyt to active membership.

Business was interrupted by a call to a fire in the Mink Hollow schoolhouse, but was resumed when the apparatus returned to quarters.

Fire Chief Duncan Wilson reported five fire calls the past month, plans for water holes in the vicinity where water would be easily available for fires, bids for new fire equipment for the four companies, plans for fire prevention program with Deputy Chief Peter Koehn in charge, and a junior firemanship course for Boy Scouts.

Captain H. Phillips Eighmey reported two fire calls for the month for Company No. 3, and the holding of three drills—all well attended by firemen. The next fire drill will be held June 24 at 7 p. m. at the firehouse. Station check for the month was assigned to firemen P. Shultis, A. Smith, D. Smith and W. Stone.

Set Pump Test
Alfred Ostrander reported further progress on the new tank truck, with a test of the pump next on the agenda, while Joseph Flanagan, in charge of radios, demonstrated a new portable unit.

The family supper for this Saturday, 6 p. m. at the firehouse, under direction of the Ladies Auxiliary, was again announced. The annual rummage and bake sale is scheduled for the firehouse Saturday, July 1, with proceeds to defray expenses of firehouse operations.

The annual fund drive was announced for the months of July and August, when firemen will call upon residents of the community for funds to promote more adequate fire protection and increase facilities now offered by the fire company. Many of the present facilities are available because of the generosity of the community and the work of the Ladies Auxiliary, said a company official.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 10, 1967

DISPLAY THE FLAG

Wednesday, June 14 will be observed as Flag Day throughout the country. All citizens should participate in its observance through simple, reverent and colorful participation by displaying the flag from their homes and businesses.

The main purpose of Flag Day is to openly and publicly demonstrate our devotion to the national emblem. In this open manifestation of our loyalty, we should display the flag where everyone can see it.

In recent years, there has been an unfortunate tendency to neglect to display the flag on patriotic occasions. If we will just stop and consider what sacrifices have been made to keep "Old Glory" flying, we will not neglect to display it prominently.

While the observance is nationwide, Flag Day has a special significance in New York State for it was at Fort Stanwix in Rome, New York that the red, white and blue colors were first raised in battle during the American Revolution.

It also was in New York in 1887 that the first official public observance of Flag Day was proclaimed. That year, the Governor of the Empire State ordered the display of "Old Glory" over all the public buildings in the State, leading the way to national recognition of our flag's birthday.

For nearly a year after the Declaration of Independence, we had no national flag. We had been fighting the British under a modified Union Jack. After the break, Revolutionary troops were going into battle under all sorts of banners.

To solve the problem, Congress finally passed the Flag Resolution on June 14, 1777. The resolution adopted called for 13 stripes of alternate red and white, with a union of 13 stars of white in a blue field, representing the new constellation.

There is no purpose of having a Flag Day without flags. So, "Fling out the banner, let it float skyward and seaward" as a reminder of Americans' hope that "Long may it wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

THE MAIN NEWS SOURCE

The daily newspaper in the United States is the major source of information for most people, particularly for local news. This was the flat statement made by Michael J. Ogden, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, in the Ninth annual Pulitzer Lecture at Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism.

"Let no one ever be conned into believing that local coverage worth a damn has ever been made, followed, interpreted, explored reported, or investigated by radio and television," Ogden stated. He is executive editor of The Providence Journal and Bulletin.

He told the class of 1967 that the news it might consider as routine was part of the making of a newspaper—a report in depth and a reflection of the whole city, state and world around us. It is this complete awareness and presentation of the news that distinguishes the daily newspaper from all other information media and makes it indispensable for an understanding and participation in everyday living.

The daily newspaper is as essential to life as the so-called mainstays—food, shelter and water—if one is to live as a civilized human being, not a vegetable.

THE LARGER CHALLENGE

Twenty years ago, the Marshall Plan started the recovery of 18 war-weary nations in Western Europe, with the expenditure of $13 billion in four years. It was also the beginning of foreign aid by the United States that has long since passed the $100 billion stage. The aim now is to put more than 70 underdeveloped countries on a self-supporting basis.

There is a vast difference between the two operations, as well as similarities. Both were aimed at alleviating hunger, poverty, desperation and chaos. Both required self-help by the other nations. But the Europeans, both victors and vanquished, had facilities and skills to build upon. The underdeveloped nations must first overcome hunger, ignorance, disease and despair that afflict more than half the world's population.

Paul G. Hoffman, the American industrialist who headed the Marshall Plan, is now director of the United Nations Special Fund, which is in charge of the multinational plan to aid underdeveloped nations. He believes that, as the building of a new Europe was the imperative of 20 years ago, so today's imperatives dictate the building of a new kind of global community. Europe was a repair job. The global task is building from the ground up. To do that, hunger, disease and ignorance must be eradicated because illiterate, listless and hungry people cannot contribute much to economic development.

The advanced nations now are discussing a new Marshall Plan in which they would all contribute to reduce and eventually eliminate the major international tensions which threaten the peace and security of the world. This should be a cooperative venture, for all the world will benefit if the billion and a half people in depressed areas are helped to help themselves.

Israel Demonstrates Patriotism

WASHINGTON — Israel's brilliant military victories and an unexampled diplomatic triumph for the United States have cut away from the Middle East an old enervation of doublethink. There is at least some distant hope for a just solution of the world's oldest crisis.

Though no one can say that the ancient fires have yet been put out, the stirring events of these days have altered old realities beyond recognition.

Vindicated before mankind has been the profound truth that honest force used in self-defense is not only thoroughly justifiable but is sometimes the last recourse of honorable men for honorable causes.

The Israeli troops have done more than to free their country from the creeping noise that Nasser Egypt — and an Egypt using essentially the Communist technique of aggression through so-called wars of liberation — had been fixing about Israel's neck. They have demonstrated that a thing called patriotism is not dead, after all, on this earth.

In Israel there were no peacekeepers, no beatniks, no beards, no military service, no Jewish politicians crying "negotiation" upon the empty air while enemy forces marched at the gates. The Israelis have behaved like men; and, like men, they have won.

Thus it is that the technique of masked aggression under other names which the United States and its allies are fighting in the Far East, in Vietnam, has been truly thrown back in the Near East.

Demonstrated before all the world, too, has been the grave weakness of a United Nations which has listened too often to what the international Communists and neutralists have wanted rather than to the demands of elementary justice.

Never until now has Israel had a square deal in the tower in Manhattan. And Israel has not got it this time from the United Nations, whose Secretary General, U Thant, positively leaped to accede to Nasser Egypt's demand for removal of the U.N. peacekeeping force in the Gaza Strip. Israel has got it solely because two responsible powers, the United States and Britain, were strong enough to convince the Soviet Union that there was no future in further backing Nasser's military expansionism.

So there is a reversal of the incredible proposition laid down in 1956 by the United Nations, in censuring the so-called invasion of Egypt by Israel, Britain and France, that when a nation moves to save itself from looming attack, it is itself guilty of aggression.

In 1956 Israel was condemned, with the participation of the United States and the Soviet Union. Now Israel is not condemned — not even by the Soviet Union. The United Nations' double-talk and double standard of yesterday — that truth was falsehood, that self-defense was aggression — has been cast into the rubbish bin of history.

Inevitably the story of these urgent days has been confused in some ways by high emotionalism.

For one illustration, Israel at no point asked or wanted military assistance from the United States. She wanted to do the military job alone. For the Israelis believed that foreign intervention would hurt rather than help their central purpose to live in ultimate peace as an integral part of the Middle East. What they really wanted was American and British backing if Israel's right to respond when Nasser sought to close the Gulf of Aqaba. And this Israel got.

The need now is to replace honest force with honest negotiation, in an atmosphere where negotiation is only now possible. It is to avoid rubbing Russian noses into the reality that the Soviet-Egyptian instrument in the Middle East has turned out to be a broken reed. It is to show a victor's magnanimity to the legitimate needs of the defeated Arab states, some of which are, after all, more Nasser's victims than his accomplices.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

High on the balcony, visitors to the New York Stock Exchange look down to the floor as intelligent ants race from nest to nest, buying and selling. Light seeps through an enormous window, displaying the squareness of the room, with giant wall boards flickering the call numbers of brokers, who watch an illuminated tape tell the story of a prosperous country.

A schoolteacher from Wyoming sees a number jump from 100 to 101. The floor is littered with scraps of paper. The brokers stride swiftly from hundreds of wall niches to one of 17 elliptical booths in the center. Each booth carries the stock symbols of its particular specialties, and at one, the most expensive stock, IBM, is quoted at 47 1/2 bid, 47 1/4 asked. At another, the cheapest stock, Weibull, stands at 3 1/2 bid, 3 3/4 asked.

There are 1,366 brokers, with 855 working on the floor. A seat costs $360,000 and the men trade in 1,250 companies with 1,500 stock issues. In all, there are eleven billion shares of stock and, in the see-saw of business, the sellers want the price to go up, the buyers want it down.

The schoolteacher from Wyoming cannot believe her eyes. The illuminated number jumps from 101 to 102. In the offices above and beside the big trading pit, officers of the New York Stock Exchange continue the prosaic work of watching the behavior of the Old Lady of Wall Street. She is 175 years old now and the rules of decorum imposed by her officers, in addition to the watchdog growls of the Securities and Exchange Commission, have transmuted the once gay hoedown into a sedate dowager who thinks that the word "speculate" is dirty.

The man in the office of president, Mr. Keith Funston, prepares to quit. He has a youngish, strong face at 56, with dark eyes and gray wavy hair. He has been president longer than any other man, 16 years, and he has had enough. In September, he will become chairman of the board of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation and a member of the board of IBM.

He leaves with honor. Where once there were bucket shops and pools of bear traders; where once there were Flisks and Drews and Vanderbilts to manipulate stock, now the exchange policies and disciplines itself. If any stock today shows an unusual rise or depression, a computer will toss a card into Funston's lap and say "Take a look at this cowboy!"

Inspectors will be sent to find the brokers who traded in that stock, and demand to know who their customers are. An investigation will disclose the reason why that issue jumped or collapsed. And yet, the brokers and their 22,000,000 customers are so sensitive that a growl from Mao Tse-tung can depress the entire market, while a kind word from secretary of the Treasury Fowler can cause it to rise and purr.

The teacher was thinking, looking down from the balcony, that it was like being inside one of a pair of giant dice—the other being the American Exchange. Her eyeballs popped when the numeral jumped from 102 to 103. Funston and all other employees of the Stock Exchange must report all their stock holdings to the Board of Governors. Every day, an average of ten million shares are traded on the big board, with a total worth of about $450,000,000. The brokers who sell it earn an average commission of 1 per cent—$4,500,000; the buying broker get another $4,500,000 from their customers.

In the darkened well of the Board of Governors room, old paintings of past presidents hang sternly, the only way in which these gentlemen permit themselves to be framed. In 1959, the board of governors invited Bernard Baruch to sit with them. He had not been in this room in 40 years. He pointed to a corner: "What happened to the painting that once hung there?" he said.

The teacher grasps the rail, and swallows dry. The number has gone from 103 to 104. She looks down at the running brokers helplessly.

The Stock Exchange bulges with prosperity because the land is prosperous. Companies doing fairly well in one business buy another, completely divorced from the first, and do better. Growth consists of steady financing, augmented markets, a solid cushion of cash, and dividends for the investor. The time for getting rich overnight is past. The harassed brokers are glad it's gone.

The number moved from 104 to 105. The teacher from Wyoming could stand it no longer. She hurried along the balcony rail to a uniformed guide.

How taxpayers are threatened by federal agencies established to protect their interests is detailed in this eighth article from Jack Anderson's "Washington Expose."

By JACK ANDERSON

To protect themselves from the dishonest and the disloyal, the American people may have created a Frankenstein's monster which is supposed to serve. This is the relentless and rapacious federal enforcement complex, which has produced a new and frightening trend toward government by investigation. The federal bureaucracy is literally crawling with investigators who, if they are to earn their salaries, must investigate someone. Today, this could be almost anyone who deals with the government or makes out a tax return.

It has become an all too frequent practice, in conflicts between private citizens and federal agencies, for the government to try to settle disputes by investigating the disputants. The power of investigation, which is supposed to be used for the good of the citizen, is often used instead to intimidate, coerce, and strike back at persons who challenge the rulings or oppose the policies of the government.

The contractor who won't accept the government's terms, the taxpayer who contests a ruling, even the associate of someone else under investigation may find himself hounded by gumshoes. Of course, the government has no power to prosecute innocent men. So an ambitious federal agency, seeking to extend its authority, must create new criminals. This is done by passing new laws or reinterpreting the old ones, thus producing guilt where none had previously existed. Then out swarm the investigators, those faceless men in blue serge suits, to look for violators. No one can say exactly how many investigators are on the government payroll, for they are often camouflaged as a attorney, accountant, and consultant. A top General Services Administration official has admitted: "We used to have a large staff of engineers and a few lawyers and investigators and a few engineers."

The government has spun a web of regulations, and a new agency adding to the tangle, that it is almost impossible for a citizen to go about his business without committing violations. More than 50 permanent agencies, employing 2.5 million people, oversee every phase of life from teaching birth control or baby care to prescribing burial methods. The federal government has make-or-buy power over more than 40 per cent of the nation's businesses. The regulatory agencies, for example, can all but destroy and transport telephone, electric, or radio television company simply by giving the thumbs-downs an extra twist.

These regulatory agencies, if they are to justify the expansion dear to the hearts of all bureaucrats, must constantly find more people to investigate.

Of course, some of the targets of investigation are Reds, racketeers, and others not wholly deserving of sympathy. And in theory, an innocent person has nothing to fear from investigators. But once the gumshoes have commenced questioning a citizen's neighbors and associates, a cloud of suspicion is raised that may never be dispelled. His reputation may be ruined even though he is innocent of any wrongdoing.

Masters, Not Servants

Although most federal officials try to be fair and most agencies do not condone coercive investigations, the bureaucratic system tends to uphold the abuses of those few entrenched office holders who regard themselves as the masters rather than the servants of the people. They usually are able to summon the massive weight of the U.S. government behind their rulings, and recommendations. For most agency heads, unfamiliar with the details of a case, are inclined to accept the judgment of their subordinates. Investigators in particular are held sacrosanct in many federal bureaus. Once they start blood-hounding a case, only the boldest bureaucrat would dare to intervene.

How many individuals can stand up against the awesome power of the federal government? No private bank account can match the bottomless vaults of the U.S. Treasury. No private staff can marshal the manpower available to the government. Once caught in the federal vice, a private citizen must rely upon the restraint and fairness of the authorities if he is to get an even break. They are supposed to seek justice for everyone, and it is heartening how many do. Others, however, don't seem to understand the difference between "prosecute" and "persecute." Some citizens contend that the government should offer no quarter to those crooks and communists who will twist every comma in the Constitution to thwart justice. But others warn that any tactics the government is permitted to use against them could be turned against anyone.

Many attorneys who are happy to see Teamster's boss Jimmy Hoffa behind bars, for example, believe the government went too far with its campaign to put him there. His every move had been shadowed, his every transaction scrutinized, his every associate investigated. Even two Congressmen, who spoke up in behalf of Hoffa on the House floor, suddenly had their taxes audited. After indicting some of his business associates, the Justice Department offered to drop prosecution if they would testify against him. A Miami banker, who had never been accused of anything worse than a traffic offense until he got involved in a business deal with Hoffa, was hauled before a grand jury on tax evasion charges. When the evidence wouldn't support a tax indictment, the grand jury indicted him for perjury instead. Even this charge was later dropped. Meanwhile the banker was so discredited that he was forced to sell his banking interests at a sacrifice.

A favorite harassment is to toss difficult cases, no matter how unrelated they may be to taxes, to the Internal Revenue Service. "A lot of agencies like to use us," Commissioner Sheldon Cohen has acknowledged. "We try to discourage this, but these disputes often have tax overtones."

The Rich Benefit

Though the rich often benefit by tax adjustments during litigation proceedings, the poor fare worse. When comedian Charlie Chaplin quit the United States he left behind a bad job: $700,000 in unpaid taxes. After a long legal hassle, Uncle Sam settled for $425,000. Negro singer Paul Robeson, whose devotion to Russia is well known, also seemed the object of strange benevolence. After a five-year fight, Internal Revenue agreed that his $25,000 Stalin prize should be tax free. Yet at the same time the government was relentlessly pursuing a host of small tax debtors, poor but loyal Americans, many of whom were in debt for reasons beyond their control. Uncle Sam garnished their wages, seized their property, confiscated their bank accounts, and deprived them of their jobs, stripping them of almost everything they possessed except the mere clothes on their backs.

Uncle Sam's aim is to be firm but fair with all taxpayers. Rich and poor are supposed to be equal in the sharp eye of Internal Revenue, which tries to administer the tax laws without regard for social standing or political pull. Yet policy and practice don't always coincide. Often tax settlements are reached by a process about as equitable as a medieval trial by fire and water. The rich man has recourse to lawyers and experts who can find loopholes in the law or stall a case in the courts.

While the rich may have the advantage of expert advice, Internal Revenue insists they get no special privileges. "We seize mink coats and yachts, too," a top official points out. To thousands of small taxpayers, struggling against arrears, this may seem cold comfort.

Many a big defaulter has been able to slip off the hook by learning the tax tricks. Consider these examples taken at random from Treasury's settlement file: A New York City printer settled a $211,532 tax bill for only $7,500; a New Jersey button manufacturer arranged to satisfy a $1,791,378 claim for $130,000; a Flushing, New York, belt maker owed $127,879 but got off for $11,000; and Indianapolis beer distributor paid only $262,094 of a $1,242,013 tax debt. Against such leniency is the harshness which many small taxpayers have encountered.

Consider these cases: A man, so hopelessly paralyzed that rehabilitation officials refused to give him vocational training, studied watchmaking on his own, devised a work bench with a sliding chair and set up his own small shop in the nation's capital. He eked out a bare living for his wife, small son, and himself. Sometimes he had trouble meeting his bills, including Uncle Sam's bite of his tiny income. He arranged a $200 bank loan to cover his 1956 tax but couldn't raise enough to pay $88 still owed from the previous year. Revenue men tried to attach his bank account until they found it contained only $20. When they threatened to take away his car, the cripple pleaded that his wife could not get him to work without it. His family would become a total charge on the community, he pointed out, if he were put out of business. No one knows what might have happened if a friend hadn't written out a check for the $88 tax bill.

A Negro laborer, bewildered by the complex tax forms, hired an "expert" who promised to reduce his taxes—and did so simply by underpaying the government. Agents showed up at the Negro's home, demanding $400 more on his tax. Because he had no way of raising that sum, three successive pay checks were garnished leaving the man nothing to live on. He had to go to a Mount Rainier, Maryland, loan company for rent and food money.

A Gonzalez, California, vegetable grower mortgaged his home to the IRS and borrowed on his life insurance to pay off back taxes. When the government slapped liens on his land, he went to tax court. The examiner didn't take long to arrive at the obvious: the man could hardly pay up if Uncle Sam wouldn't let him grow vegetables. The court ordered the liens lifted.

A Washington free-lance writer has been hounded to despair for $371 back taxes. He claims federal agents have called on him dozens of times, questioned business and personal friends about his finances, notified neighbors he is evading taxes, and asked his mailman to report any envelopes that might contain checks. The writer pleaded that his fixed expenses, including the care of an invalid mother, exceeded his income. "What do you want me to do," he asked, "move into a tent?" He quotes the agents as replying: "We don't give a what you do, just so you pay the bill."

Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee, which writes the nation's tax laws, appointed a panel of 22 prominent tax attorneys and accountants to investigate how the laws are being administered. The group found many acts of "overzealousness" which had infringed the vital rights and dignities of individuals. Treasury's claim that these acts were outside official policy was disingenuous. Agents have been known to bring fraud charges against a taxpayer simply to lengthen the time to investigate his returns. The statute of limitations runs out in three years on delinquent taxes, but extends to six years for fraud. The power to levy assessments and liens, residing in the hands of Treasury's field agents, has been used as a club to force a taxpayer to give in without a fight for his rights. The panel also complained of "a tendency to punish a suspected taxpayer by adverse publicity. Sometimes agents do not take adequate steps to avoid unnecessary injury to the reputation of the person under investigation." Another practice, found in local offices, is the "quota system" to stimulate collections. Agents are in effect threatened with dismissal if they don't get results in enough cases.

Internal Revenue would like its agents to be loved. To this end, it tries eagerly to make more friendly contact with the public. Originally called Internal Revenue Bureau, it dropped the "Bureau" for Service because the agency chiefs felt the former word had too harsh a ring. They wanted to emphasize that their job was to help the taxpayer, not merely pluck him. The 6,000 collectors have been designated "revenue officers" to get away from the old stigma of their calling. The word "warrant" has been eliminated from final tax notices because of its unduly frightening connotation. A special committee has examined all form letters to make sure they contain no implied threats or disagreeable language.

But, as in any large organization, petty tyrants do exist. Even an occasional misfit turns up. A Washington attorney was given such a rough time over his taxes that he started checking on the agent's background. It turned out that the revenue man was an escapee from Baltimore's Shepherd Pratt Insane Asylum. A paroled type, he believed himself to be the illegitimate son of ex-president Woodrow Wilson and the Duchess of Kent. This is, of course, a unique case. The great majority of Internal Revenue employees are decent, hardworking, people doing their best in a difficult, unpopular job to serve both the government and the public. Yet hardships and inequalities, perhaps inevitable when a great bureaucratic machine begins to grind, do exist. Tax disputes more than any other have given many harassed citizens a glimpse of the other face of Uncle Sam when he scowls.

Manhunt Ends in Capture of New Mexico Raider

BERNALILLO, N.M. (AP)—Reies Tijerina, object of a giant manhunt which included tanks and the National Guard, was arrested with two other men at a state police roadblock south of Bernalillo today.

Tijerina is the leader of the militant Spanish-American group which allegedly raided a rural northern New Mexico courthouse last Monday, shot two police officers and took two other men as hostages. Tijerina, 40, who had vowed to fight to the end, was armed with a loaded .38 caliber automatic and offered no resistance when arrested by three state policemen. He was taken to Santa Fe and jailed under heavy guard. Officers said that with Tijerina in the car were his son, Hugh Reyes Tijerina, 19, and Uvaldo

Velasquez, 47, of Youngsville, N.M., an employee of the anti-poverty Home Education Livelihood Program—HELP. They also were jailed. A service station operator at San Ysidro, northwest of Bernalillo, telephoned state police dispatcher Frank Wallace at Albuquerque that a car stopped and the driver bought $2 worth of gas. The operator said he saw a man who he believed was Tijerina get out of the car and get a drink of water from a hose. Wallace dispatched state police Lt. Jess Sosa and officers Arthur Sedillo and Tony Gonzales to the scene and they made the arrests at 12:47 a.m. A search by about 500 men of a 2,500-square mile area of the Carson National Forest this week failed to turn up any of the most wanted leaders of the group, which is called the Confederation of Free City States. The group contends its members are heirs under old Spanish land grants to millions of acres in the Southwest. The courthouse raid followed by minutes a court appearance of seven members of the group on charges of extortion and unlawful assembly. The charges stemmed from their threats of an armed showdown regarding their land claims.

Yours Dental Health

D.D.S. By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, Newspaper Enterprise Assn. DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: "My husband has stopped smoking, but is now chewing tobacco. He doesn't think it's harmful. . . . He has a grayish sore on the inside of his cheek, and his cheek is starting to sag even when he's not chewing. I can't stand the smell, and it nauseates me to see him spit. I've asked him to stop but he won't listen to me. Maybe he'll listen to you."—Mrs. M.B. Your husband has given up one evil, smoking, for an equally bad one, tobacco chewing. Cigarette smoking is more often associated with lung cancer than is with mouth cancer. But chewing tobacco is really asking for trouble. The only reason there are so few mouth cancers from chewing tobacco is that so few people chew.

In India, where many people "chew" betel nut, incidence of mouth cancer is so high it's a common disease and a serious problem. Tobacco is an irritant, and repeated contact with mucous membrane of the mouth produces a deep craterlike lesion, whitish gray in color, sometimes striated, and sometimes red and angry-looking. When deeper layers of tissue become involved, causing changes in cellular structure, cancer in situ and, finally, frankly invasive cancer follows.

It shocked me to discover recently that women (not many) chewed tobacco. And not in India but right here in the United States. What a way to demonstrate equality of the sexes!

Hold 3 Youths In Area Drug Store Burglary

Apprehended early today by Kingston State Police as the result of a radio alarm broadcast by Margaretville State Police, three Brooklyn youths were in custody facing charges of first degree burglary.

Trooper Richard Dempsey said the men were identified as Charles Calafato, 16; Robert Marcanti, 18, and Daniel Scolo, 19, all of Brooklyn. According to authorities at Margaretville, the trio allegedly smashed a rear window and entered the Bellare Pharmacy, Main Street, Fleischmann's at about 3 a.m. today, and took $3.70 after ransacking merchandise. Troopers were notified and radio alarms were sent out alerting authorities throughout the mid-Hudson Valley. At about 4:30 a.m. Troopers Fred Cooper and Richard Bergen of the Kingston barracks were on patrol on Route 28 in the vicinity of Glenford when they spotted a car with three suspicious acting youths. Cooper and Bergen pursued the vehicle for some distance before overtaking it. Calafato, Marcanti and Scolo were taken to the Kingston state police barracks for questioning. Later they were turned over to troopers from Margaretville.

BCI officers of the Delaware County troops barracks said a quantity of candy, cigarettes, cigars and spark plugs were found in the car. The Brooklynites were to be questioned about the merchandise. Kingston State Police said the youths also would be questioned about other entries in this area, including a break-in at the James S. Ford and Son garage at Shandaken. That place was entered by jimmying the front door and missing from the office was a quantity of candy, cigarettes, cigars and spark plugs. Trooper Dempsey said Scolo also was cited for speeding, driving a car with a faulty muffler, no inspection sticker and insufficient lights.

NEW YORK (AP)—War in the Middle East sent tremors through the business and financial world this past week.

First to be affected were the stock markets, then airlines and shipping and the oil industry. Prices tumbled Monday on stock exchanges in New York, London, Paris, Tokyo, Montreal and Toronto after hostilities erupted between Israel and the Arab nations.

The New York Stock Exchange was rocked by one of its most severe losses in early trading and then came back somewhat.

In an effort to reassure panicky investors, stock analysts pointed out the market usually reacts violently, but only momentarily, to crises and calamities.

This proved true. On Tuesday and Wednesday the market more than recovered its Monday loss.

Investors were encouraged by reports of Israeli victories which, they felt, lessened the chances of United States involvement.

Brokers said most of the early selling was by small investors while the big institutions stood pat and then moved in to pick up bargains.

The oil industry took the hardest blows from the hostilities which engulfed its most productive area.

Production was closed down in Iraq, Libya, Saudi Arabia and the Arabian Gulf, sheikdoms, in some instances in retaliation for alleged United States and British support of Israel and in others because of local disorders.

This shut off output of about seven million barrels of oil daily. Egypt closed the Suez Canal through which most of the oil flows to Europe.

There was little likelihood that the war would cause an oil shortage in the United States because domestic production, along with imports from sources other than the Middle East, would be sufficient.

However, a prolonged conflict could seriously affect Western Europe, Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

The Middle East furnishes roughly one-third of the oil supply. Western Europe imports more than 80 per cent of its needs of nine million barrels daily from the Middle East and North Africa.

To meet the needs of other countries, the United States could boost its oil production by more than two million barrels daily and output could be boosted in Canada, Venezuela and other Western areas.

Airlines canceled their flights to the Middle East with the exception of El Al Israel Airlines, which continued its regular schedule to Tel Aviv.

Oceangoing passenger ships generally canceled Mediterranean cruises near the war zone this summer. The war pushed general cargo ocean freight rates up 25 per cent. Most ocean shippers held back from booking vessels until the situation clears.

The Commerce Department reported this past week that business outlooks for expansion and modernization are not rising as fast as previously projected.

A new survey indicated that for all of 1967 outlooks are expected to rise to a record $62.4 billion but the gain from the previous high of $60.63 billion set in 1966 would be 2.9 per cent instead of 3.9 per cent projected earlier.

The unemployment rate rose in mid-May to 3.8 per cent of the labor force from 3.7 per cent in April, the Labor Department reported.

BEAUTIFUL BRIDE

Helpful Hints for Important Day

By

DOROTHY A. NAREL

"If you invite Aunt Bessie on Mama's side, Uncle Jack has to come also." — "If you invite Mary, don't invite Alice, they can't stand each other."

These are only two of the many arguments and rationalizations you hear during the pre-wedding days. It seems that both bride and bridegroom have arrived at a simple solution these days about the invitations list — they merely divide it in half.

Perhaps the greatest test problem in planning a wedding is knowing who pays for what.

One leading authority on the subject has broken it down in three lists:

The Bride's Family

Wedding invitations and announcements.

The flowers for the church or temple.

The fees for the sexton and for the organist.

The bridesmaids' bouquets and presents for the bridesmaids.

The bride's wedding dress, clothes for trousseau and household linen.

All expenses of the reception: food, flowers, music, champagne, liquor and cars for the bride's home to the place where the wedding is held and from there to the place of the reception.

The Bridegroom's Family

The engagement ring.

The wedding ring.

The marriage license.

The bride's bouquet.

Boutonnieres for the best man and ushers.

Gifts for the ushers, their gloves and neckties.

The bachelor dinner.

Contribution to the clergyman.

The car in which the bride and bridegroom leave the reception if one must be hired.

All expenses of the wedding trip.

The Bridal Party

Bridesmaids and ushers pay for the clothes which wear to the wedding, for their transportation to the bride's home and back again.

It is not necessary for the bride to give a wedding present or a wedding ring to the bridegroom. Frankly speaking, I still prefer to see men "untagged."

No matter whether a wedding is to be large or small there is a fixed rule that the reception must be either at the house of the bride's parents, or grandparents, or other relatives, or else in an assembly room.

(or hall) rented by her family.

Etiquette as always decreed that the bridegroom's family may give entertainment of whatever description they choose for the young couple after they are married, but the wedding breakfast as well as the trousseau of the bride, however simple, must be furnished by her own side of the house.

There is only one exception — when the bride is alone and without a family. There is always an exception to every rule.

When the wedding date has been established and confirmed with the church or temple, the next step is to decide the time of day, and the number of guests that can be provided for on that important day.

Invitations — Order them two months prior to the wedding date! The bride's mother then consults with the bridegroom — or more realistically with his mother — about how the house list is to be divided between them.

The number of invitations to the church ceremony are unlimited. You include the entire list of those attending the reception afterwards, business acquaintances, club and organizational friendships and even people in deep mourning.

This type of invitation is actually a messenger carrying the news of your forthcoming marriage. Your only concern should be the size of the church or hall.

At a typically average wedding, friends are asked to the reception as well as to the church and acquaintances to the church only.

For a large and elaborate wedding, include an invitation to the church ceremony with an enclosed card of admission. Intimate friends and relatives receive also an invitation to the "reception" which may be a sit-down breakfast or a buffet supper with preparations for dancing.

Correct invitations are always engraved on the first page of a double sheet of ivory white or note paper either plain or with a raised margin called a plate-mark. The invitation to the church should always request "the honour" — spelled with a "u" — of the "pleasure" of your "company." It is the invitation to the reception that requests the "pleasure" of your "company."

With so many of the young boys in the service it might be interesting to note that on the wedding invitations, the name of a bridegroom whose rank is below Commander in the Navy or Captain in the Army is engraved with his rank under it. The name of a non-commissioned or an enlisted man in the Armed Forces is engraved John Strong and Signal Corps, U.S.N.R., or Coast Artillery, U.S.A., or whatever designation is his, in smaller type directly beneath the name on the wedding invitations.

Music — The question as to the kind of music that may be played in the church is in the province first of the church rules, and second of the choirmaster or organist. Most weddings still have the march from Wagner's Lohengrin and the recessional is usually that of Mendelssohn.

If the bride and bridegroom have their hearts set on music which they are advised is not in good taste or in keeping with religious regulations, they can have these selections played at the reception.

On occasion a notable singer — or even possibly an organist — who is a member of the bride's or bridegroom's family, or perhaps merely a special friend, may quite properly be included in the musical selection. But it would be very discourteous to invite an outsider without consulting and receiving the consent of the church organist.

Wedding Cake — believe it or not, but according to Emily Post, black fruit cake is traditional and most expensive. Also used are light fruit cake and pound cake.

Note of Thanks — Your note of thanks for a gift must be handwritten. It would not be possible to over-emphasize the inexcusable rudeness of the bride who sends a printed or even an engraved card of thanks for wedding presents sent to her. It just isn't done.

Attendants' Gifts — Gifts for the bride's attendants are usually presented by the bride the day before the wedding. It can be a luncheon or a tea. The typical gift is a bracelet, a bangle, pin, clip or other trinket. The gift to a maid of honor or matron of honor may well match those given to the bridesmaids or be quite different. If it is something that can be engraved, such as silver tray or dish, the date and the initials of the bride and bridegroom commemorate the occasion.

Ushers' Gifts — Gifts for the ushers are usually put at their places at the bachelor dinner. Cuff links are still the most popular gift but silver or gold pencils, belt buckles, key rings, cigarette cases, billfolds or other small personal articles are suitable also. The present to the best man may be the same or slightly better.

Other small bits of information which can be so easily overlooked includes the fact that no person is ever seated after the entrance of the mother of the bride. Guests who arrive late should stand in the vestibule or go into the gallery. For the procession, the bride should be at a double distance behind the maid of honor. She is escorted on her father's RIGHT arm. At the foot of the altar, the bride changes the bouquet to her left hand and gives her right hand to the bridegroom.

Do You Remember

By Sophie Miller

It will seem strange that this year the Ulster County Fair will not be held at Forest Park. It brought folks from all over the county to Kingston, and I used to like the book sales they had in the past years. It seems that same folks would come to the fair and book sale and it was like meeting old friends. Little by little everything nice seems to be leaving Kingston.

I am glad that Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Baggot of 93 Lucas Avenue will run the antique show, at the Dietz Memorial Stadium for a Mental Health group. This will take place today.

From time to time folks ask me about the local early 1900 post cards I have. Personally I have saved the boats, Kingston Point Park and such for my own collection. When I have a number of one kind, I either exchange or dispose of those of which I have several. I have several of the Kingston Post Office, which was built around 1906, and shows Broadway back in those horse days. The old City Hospital, standing on a grassy hill, before the hospital burned Feb. 20, 1926, which was replaced, and additions put on right along. Have the County Court House, built in 1818 when it had the iron fence in front. Have a few of the central Fire Station, with the round doors later replaced by overhead square doors. This was opened Dec. 1, 1908. This colored card shows some of the equipment with horses. Today this is desired by collectors. Where the George Washington School stands today, stood Sahler's Sanitarium and park. I have an early card of this sanitarium, to which many nationally known patients came.

Cliff Swallows

Southern California's mission of San Juan Capistrano's swallows are cliff swallows. They are one of the few western birds that live close to man, building globular mud nests under eaves.

Freeman Publishes Wedding Stories

Down through the years, The Freeman has extended the courtesy of publishing wedding stories and will continue to do so. This is just about the time of year when many telephone calls are being received by the Woman's Department and in answer to some of the questions, we submit the following:

In order to print an accurate story, a standard wedding form is made available to every prospective bride. These will be mailed upon request. For best coverage, the form and accompanying picture should reach the Woman's Page Editor at least a day before the wedding.

Pictures for publication must be submitted in advance or WITHIN 10 DAYS and be of a quality acceptable for publication. Pictures must be of the bride alone.

In keeping with good taste, only highlights of gown and floral descriptions should be submitted.

The bride-elect is responsible for submitting accurate information to the newspaper.

Quality Control Schedules Panel

The American Society for Quality Control will hold the 10th and final meeting of the 1966-67 season Tuesday, June 13 at the Kitchen in Hyde Park.

J. Van Horn of Kingston may be contacted for dinner reservations.

Restaurateurs To Meet Tuesday

Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Liquor Dealers Association will hold a luncheon meeting Tuesday 1 p. m. at Sportsmen's Park, Rosendale.

Buc Bats Booming Since Last Meeting

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Pittsburgh Pirates are closed mouthed about their problems and bring their gripes into the open.

The Pirates managed eight hits and three runs that night and Tommie Sisk hurled a shut-out at the Mets, but the real noise was heard Friday night.

Hitters Are Hot
Every starter except pitcher Billy O'Dell, who scattered eight hits for his fifth victory in seven decisions, had at least two hits. Manny Mota and Gene Alley each had four.

Bill Mazeroski drove in four runs with two singles and a sacrifice fly and Willie Stargell, Alley and Jerry May accounted for three each as the Pirates slugged 20 singles, one double and two triples.

The Reds did not get as many hits—only 14—but three of them were homers by Pete Rose, Deron Johnson and Don Pavletich for six runs in the seventh inning that overcame a 7-4 deficit.

Rose's blast came with two on and tied the score. After Tony Perez doubled, Johnson and Pavletich spoke up.

Pavletich had doubled home two earlier runs and Rose and Perez singled in the others.

Pitcher Dick Hughes hushed Los Angeles with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 deadlock. The lanky right-hander also scattered seven hits before leaving in the ninth.

Orlando Cepeda had an inside-the-park homer for one Cardinal run.

Joe Torre snapped a 1-1 tie with a un-scoring single that put Atlanta ahead in the sixth inning and Dennis Menke followed with a clinching homer off loser Mike McCormick.

Ken Johnson yielded only solo homers by Ollie Brown, Jack Hiatt and Jim Hart in 8 2-3 innings.

Ernie Banks did most of the talking for the Cubs. He opened the eighth inning with a double that led to two unearned runs and a 5-5 tie and then he singled home the winning run on a 2-2 count with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth. The Mets had walked Lee Thomas to get to Banks the final time.

Ed Charles and Tommie Davis homered earlier for the Mets and Randy Hundley hit one for the Cubs.

New Twins' Manager Learns Facts of Life

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Baltimore Orioles wasted no time teaching Cal Ermer the facts of American League life.

Ermer, the new manager of the Minnesota Twins, climbed into a uniform only 20 minutes before the game time Friday night and then watched the Twins absorb an 11-2 loss at the hands of the Orioles.

Frank Robinson slammed a three-run homer, his 17th of the year, and Boog Powell had a three-run shot as Baltimore jolted four Minnesota pitchers for 14 hits.

In other American League action, Kansas City shut out Cleveland twice, 2-0 and 6-0; Boston nipped Washington 8-7. New York pushed a run across in the 10th inning to edge Chicago 2-1 and California blanked Detroit 4-0.

Ermer was named manager of the floundering Twins Friday afternoon after President Cal Griffith dismissed Sam Mele. He flew in from Denver, where he had managed the Twins' Pacific Coast League team for the last 2½ years, and made it in time for Friday night's game.

He had hardly found a spot for himself in the Minnesota dugout before the Orioles hopped on Dean Chance for three unearned runs in the first inning.

Robinson doubled home a run in the fifth and then put the game out of reach with his three-run homer in the sixth. Powell's three-run shot in the eighth climaxed the Orioles' assault.

Moe Drabowsky, who struck out Bob Allison with the bases loaded, choking off a Twins' threat in the fifth, worked 4 2-3 innings of scoreless relief for his fifth straight victory. Chance, 9-3, was the loser.

Dobson outduelled Steve Hargan, who allowed only two hits, in the opener. Hargan had pitched six hitless innings before Ramon Webster's leadoff triple broke the spell in the seventh. Two outs later, Jim Gosger homered, accounting for both Kansas City runs.

Rout McDowell
The A's routed Sam McDowell with a six-run first inning in the nightcap and Hunter breezed with a six-hitter. The big blow for Kansas City was rookie Dave Duncan's three-run homer in his first major league appearance at bat this season.

Carl Yastrzemski and Joe Foy tagged two homers apiece for the Red Sox, who overcame an early 6-2 Washington lead.

John Wyatt relieved winner Jose Santiago with the tying run at third and none out in the ninth and pitched out of the jam, preserving the victory.

Horace Clarke singled Steve Whitaker across with the Yankees' winning run in the 10th inning against Chicago. Whitaker had singled and moved to second when pinch hitter Dick Howser was hit by a pitch.

Elston Howard homered for the Yankees in the seventh and Al Downing preserved the one-run edge until the ninth when the White Sox scored the tying run on Tom McCraw's double and Ken Berry's single.

CHARLES J. TIANO

The golf committee may be banished to Thule long before Sept. 15 but golfers at Woodstock Country Club today began their dreaded confrontation with strict United States Golf Association rules.

In short, the golfers are going to have to play them "as they lie." Doesn't sound like a big deal but it can be a frightening experience for duffers and veteran players who for years have been leaning on the crutch of teeing up every shot, off the tees, in the fairways and sometimes in the rough and traps.

The reaction at Woodstock is awaited with great interest because the rules go into effect for a major tournament.

Biggest argument against USGA Rules is the old complaint that area golf courses are not properly groomed and maintained and, really, not fit for this rugged type of play.

Strongest rebuttal to this old argument is the ancient Scottish and British tradition of "rub of the green." If you get a bad lie and I don't, well, laddie, it's the rub of the green.

The swirl of controversy that is bound to develop anytime a golf committee imposes strict USGA interpretations on a reluctant membership recalls a sad comment we heard from a golf chairman several years ago.

"Our club once tried the noble experiment," he recalls. "The guy you'd least expect to balk was the first one to yell. He happened to be the club champion. When he objected, all the boys fell in line and that was the end of that."

GOLF QUESTION OF THE WEEK: What is the real story about the broken toe sustained by George Schneider on the No. 5 tee at Twalfskill this week?

Wouldn't you know it department: Deanie Elwyn, Al Pettinato and Harry Hohnhorst in the No. 2 fairway at Woodstock waiting for a foursome to clear the No. 2 green. And not another golfer in sight on the whole course.

Mike Perry, Ulster County Community College golf coach, carved out a career low 84 in the Eastern New York Golf Association tournament at Windham.

Wiltwyck's dozen new electric carts swank.... Arnold Pinsky, the Wiltwyck golf chairman, cannot accept any appointments for next Thursday. He'll be busy with that new IBM gadget at Baltusrol in New Jersey for the United States Open tournament.

Gary Player, who has won them all, says the Open is still the most prestigious of all tournaments.

EDDIE SCHULTZ, PRO AT TROY COUNTRY CLUB for 40 years, was recently given a testimonial and substantial purse by more than 200 of his friends and associates. Schultz was one of the early giants of the Northeastern New York PGA, along with Alex Geriak, Scotty Robertson and Tom Creamy. During his career, the 68-year-old Schultz set course records at Troy, Rutland, Catskill and Colonie. His 63 in 1935 at Troy Country Club is still the club record. It was set during qualifying play for the National PGA. The next day he added a 68. He was renowned for his short game.... The annual Northeastern Pro-Member-Guest is expected to be restored to the Woodstock calendar for an October date.... Area amateurs have been somewhat reluctant to qualify for the county championship this season. That could mean only one thing—end of the quota system for participating clubs.

GENE SARAZEN, THE SQUIRE of nearby Germantown and frequent visitor to Woodstock, teed off in 31 consecutive U.S. Opens and completed 26, more than any other player. Sam Snead had 24 through 1965 but has missed qualifying the last two years and may never make it again. Snead, the Man Who Never Won the Open, won more tournaments than any other golfer in history.

Sarazen, incidentally, says Jack Nicklaus' current slump may be attributed to worry.

"He's worrying all the time," says Gene. "Worrying about penalties, business, because the crowd goes for Arnold Palmer and not him."

"Jack ought to throw his problems over his shoulders. He should quit worrying over and over about his ball. I never paid attention to the crowd just thought about my golf. I lost the British Open by one shot and I told my wife I didn't want to hear any more about it. 'I threw it over my shoulder.'"

Morse School in Blue Mountain, were made by Principal Patrick Bionfiglio and a committee on which Board members Henry Breitenbach and Edwin Olson served.

The next meeting, scheduled for the same purpose will be held on Wednesday 8 p. m. at Glasco

School. Principal Clarence Bryden, with Board members Anthony Rizzo and LeRoy Snyder, is working for a good attendance at the meeting. The vote on the bond issue will be held on Thursday, June 29, at the Main Street School with the polls open from 12 noon to 9 p. m.

Board President Jack O. Pakanen welcomed those in attendance, stressed the importance of a large turnout of voters at the June 29th meeting, and pointed out that the last bond issue was lost by only 187 votes. Using an overhead projector and slides, Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of Schools illustrated the need for the two additions. Following the presentation, Board members joined the superintendent in answering questions.

It was made clear to those present that the Board of Education could study and plan the needs and solution of school building problems but the final action and the essential action, making money available through a bond issue, can only be accomplished by the voters of the school district. The Board of Education wants all voters to be well-informed and urges attendance at one or more of the three remaining meetings, all at 8 p. m.

Wednesday, June 14, Glasco School Auditorium.
Thursday, June 15, Mt. Marion School Auditorium.
Wednesday, June 21, Main Street School Auditorium.

1st Congregational

Church school classes of First Congregational Church, Saugerties, for all age groups, meet at 10 a. m. each Sunday. Charles Walker will be in charge of opening devotions June 11. Visitors and new members are cordially invited. Children's Day observance will be held during morning service this week at 11 a. m. during the first 30 minutes of service. Sermon topic for that day will be: "The Test of Being Concerned." Members are asked to come and support the children and teachers in their work.

Saturday of this week, the Women's Fellowship will hold a baked food sale in the church school rooms of the church beginning at 10 o'clock. Friends and members are invited to participate since the cooperation of many people is needed to make such an enterprise worthwhile.

New members will be received June 18 and a child will be presented for baptism. Church school classes will not be held after June 18 until early September.

June 25 is the church school annual picnic to be held at the 3 R's in Mt. Marion.

Beginning July 2, morning services are at 10 o'clock and will continue at this hour for the summer months. Families are urged to bring their children to service. Plans are being made to interest them, so the break in the continuity for church school will not be so severe.

Friends of Edson Vedder will want to know that he is in Kingston Hospital, and would enjoy receiving greeting cards.

This year the Class of 1967 has set up a different format for activities surrounding graduation. Members have attempted to incorporate functions into a weekend series of events. As a result, the following schedule has been developed and will be adhered to this year.

On Thursday, June 22 a rehearsal for commencement will be held at 8 a. m. at the high school. All seniors will be required to attend. At 11 a. m. of the same day seniors will be taken to Sack's Lodge for the remainder of the day and will return to the high school at approximately 8:30 p. m. On Friday, June 23 a second commencement rehearsal will be held, if necessary, at 8 a. m. at the high school. That evening at 8 p. m. the Senior Ball will be held. This dance will run from 8 p. m. until 12 midnight.

There will be no events scheduled for Saturday, June 24. On Sunday, June 25 at 2:30 p. m. the culmination of all events occurs with graduation exercises. This year, weather permitting, ceremonies will take place on the lawn directly in front of the school. If inclement weather prevails, commencement will be held in the auditorium. The class looks forward to this new format and hopes it will be outstanding.

Council Donates Library Books

Saugerties Area Council of Churches through the Rev. Walter Cowen, chairman of library book committee, announced that the following books have been placed in the Saugerties Public Library for general use by the council:

The Incendiary Fellowship by Trublood; How to Become a Bishop Without Being Religious by Charles Smith, a Methodist minister, who takes a sharp, witty and loving look at the foibles of the clergy and church members. Games Christians Play, another look at some of the activities that goes on in many congregations. A small book, it can be read in an evening and provides an objective look, in an amusing manner, of human nature at work in the church.

The Comfortable Pew, Where in the World, and the Secular City, three paperbacks, have been donated by the Rev. Walter Cowen.

Set Visitors Week For Day Nursery

Parents of Prospective students, as well as the children themselves and other interested members of the community are welcome to visit the Community Day Nursery at Dutch Arms Chapel, John Street, Saugerties between 9 and 10:15 a. m. from Monday, June 12 through Friday, June 16.

A member of the committee will be present to answer questions and guide visitors through the indoor and outside facilities. Because class will be in session this will be an excellent opportunity to see the nursery school "live."

Atonement Church

Atonement Lutheran Church, the Rev. Walter Cowen, pastor, 100 Market Street, Saugerties, has services at 8 and 11 a. m. with nursery care during late service. Sunday school at 9:15 a. m.

Sunday school sessions will continue throughout the month of June and be in recess during July and August and through Labor Day weekend. During July and August there will be one service each Sunday at the church at 9 a. m. at which time members are encouraged to attend as families and bring the children to church.

A class of 13 young people, upon completion of two years instruction in catechism, Bible and responsibilities of church membership, were received last Sunday by Rite of Confirmation. They received their first communion as a group, administered with the use of the common cup. A class photograph was taken and each member of the class will receive a copy. Mary Ann Reader, in behalf of the class, presented an altar prayer book, containing a general prayer for each Sunday of the church year, and Anita Smith of Spaulding Lane, Saugerties, presented a gift of $25 in behalf of the class from offerings received from pupils at class sessions. The boys were robed in blue gowns and girls in white for the ceremony. Many who sponsored the pupils at baptisms were present.

Lutheran Church Women held their monthly meeting Thursday with a casserole supper at 6:30 p. m., those attending bringing a dish to pass. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. J. Henry Schmidt of West Saugerties, and Bible quiz by Mrs. Frederick Kukuk of Saugerties. Refreshment committee included Mrs. Raymond Kropp of Spaulding Lane, Mrs. J. Henry Schmidt of West Saugerties and Mrs. James Chase of High Woods.

More Consideration Advised On Tax Assessment Mapping

Need for "further careful and full consideration" before the county approves an assessment mapping plan for the county, was advised by a special advisory committee which recently went to Fulton County to observe and assess the program there.

In a report to the board of supervisors this week, the committee which is composed of Supervisor Charles E. Penney of Shawangunk, County Treasurer Fred DuBois, County Clerk Albert Spada, Assistant County Attorney Richard W. Griggs and Kingston Attorney James G. Connelly, said that "the Board of Supervisors should give further study and consideration before adoption of a tax assessment plan for the county. The report was signed by all members of the special advisory committee."

On April 27, the committee traveled to Fulton County where the actual mapping plan began in the 1930's when a map showing the county and town lines, as well as the county and town highways was prepared. Since that time Fulton began and through the years has continued to prepare tax assessment maps of the various towns. Maps for six of the 10 towns have been completed.

Fulton has a population of 54,900 with 10 townships with an area of approximately 533 square miles and 341,000 acres.

Fulton has contracted with American Air Surveys for similar tax maps for the remaining four towns at a cost of approximately $54,000. The four towns to be completed contain a population of some 6,500, with an area of about 236 square miles and 152,000 acres. Under the long term project, it is impossible to approximate the cost for all towns.

Ulster County encompasses an area of some 660,000 acres with a population of approximately 135,000. There are approximately 5,000 parcels of land in the four townships in Fulton now being mapped at a cost of $54,000. In Ulster County there are about 54,000

IBM Rents Port Ewen Facility

Arrangements have been made by International Business Machines Corp. to lease approximately 77,000 square feet of a building formerly occupied by Big Scout south of Port Ewen, it was announced today by George W. Tamke, general manager of the IBM System Manufacturing Plant, Kingston.

Approximately 200 members of the Kingston Laboratory organization and students at IBM Kingston's programming school will use the building. The facility will be known as the Port Ewen Laboratory Annex. Classrooms will be provided for the recently established Programming Education Center and will permit consolidation of the Power Products Engineering organization.

Commenting on the need for the additional space in this area, Maurice A. Every, manager of the Kingston laboratory, said, "the lease on this laboratory annex will serve two purposes. It will make space available at the main plant site for development, programming and testing of the larger models of IBM's System/360 computers and associated equipment. By relocating our power products engineering organization and our Programming Education Center, they will be able to gain additional space that they need."

Tamke added that there would be no significant change in the population of IBM Kingston as a result of this leasing arrangement. Occupancy of the Port Ewen Laboratory Annex is scheduled for this summer.

Bridge

Vanishing Act for Slam Set

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The late Philip Hal Sims was probably the greatest auction bridge player. He also was mighty good at contract except that he liked to bid his slams by the quickest possible method. Of course there wasn't much science to the game in Hal's day and even today we see nothing much wrong with his jump to six diamonds over his partner's two no-trump. Hal made little ceremony wasn't done with mirrors but just by praying that West would have to follow to three leads of each side suit.

Hal led a club to dummy's ace and ruffed a club. Then he led a heart to dummy's king and ruffed a heart. Then he played out three rounds of spades, stopping in dummy.

At this point Hal was down to four trumps and West held three trumps and either a club or a heart. It was up to Hal to decide which suit the other card was in but East had helped Hal out. East had played the four of hearts at trick one and dropped the three of hearts under dummy's king. Then when the third heart was led East had falsecarded with the queen. This was a silly falsecard because Hal's ten spot opening had denied the jack.

Therefore Hal knew that East held the jack of hearts and West another club. He ruffed a club and led his ten of trumps. West took one trump trick but had to lead back to Hal's king-eight.

about dummy play. He won the heart lead with his ace and put his ace of diamonds on the table. East showed out and West remarked, "If I'd known that you held both the ace and king of trumps I would have doubled you."

Hal looked over the hand for a second and replied, "Maybe you will be glad that you didn't." Then Hal proceeded to make his contract.

He was lucky to do so after the bad trump break but without that break he would have had no problems at all. It

Expected to Win Approval

Questions Answered on Draft Law

EDITOR'S NOTE—Scores of proposed changes in the nation's military draft law have been bandied about in recent months. Now congressional negotiators have reached agreement on a proposed new law expected to win final approval soon. Here, in question and answer form, are details of how the proposed plan would work.

BY ROBERT A. HUNT

WASHINGTON (AP)—The proposed new military draft law Congress is whipping into shape makes it easier for college students to win deferment.

And it permits President Johnson to go ahead with his announced plan to put 19-year-olds at the top of the available manpower pool. The present procedure drafts men in inverse order of age from 25-year-olds on down, but Vietnam war demands have brought the age of inductees down to 19 or 20 in many draft board districts already.

The proposed new law, approved this week by Senate and House conferees, would go into effect for four years starting July 1.

It also provides for a speed-up in settling appeals from local draft board decisions, preserves the virtual autonomy of local draft boards and prohibits the President from changing the present selection system without another law. Johnson had proposed a national lottery plan of random selection.

College students who now must make a case before their local draft board to obtain a deferment—and then stay in the top half of their class to keep the deferment—hereafter would be deferred as a matter of legal right if they request.

And they wouldn't have to maintain a high scholastic standing. They would have to keep up with their classes and meet the academic and other standards of their school.

Here are some of the questions most often asked about the proposed new law and the answers as supplied by congressional draft experts:

Q Does it make any changes in the present priority categories for induction?

A No. These priorities are determined by local draft boards under presidential regulations. The President has said top priority for induction will be the 19-year-old group, preceded by students whose temporary deferments have expired. Top priority now are the 25-year-olds.

Q When would the 19-year-old priority go into effect?

A Whenever the President orders it. He could change his mind, but Congress has expressed its favor for taking the younger men first.

Q Why the emphasis on 19-year-olds?

A Combat commanders generally prefer that most of their new recruits be in the younger age brackets, saying they are more adaptable to training. Problems associated with family dependency are less frequent at such ages.

Q What are the chances of being drafted at age 19?

A Statistics show that about two of every seven persons now eligible for induction actually are drafted. The Pentagon expects to meet all of its monthly draft requirements from the 19-year-old group and from students whose deferments have ended. An estimated two million males reach age 19 annually.

Q If a young man isn't drafted at age 19, what are the prospects for being inducted later?

A If he gets past 19 and world conditions don't get worse, his chances of not being inducted are very good. A new crop of 19-year-olds will go into the eligibility pool ahead of him.

Q Would 19-year-old fathers or husbands be deferred?

A Not automatically. Their local draft boards could defer them extreme hardship would result from induction.

Q What basic change would the new law make?

A The major change affects students. The proposed new law would require draft boards to grant deferments upon request for undergraduate students pursuing fulltime courses and meeting their schools' academic and other requirements. The deferment would be a matter of right. The old law left it to the discretion of draft boards and conditioned the deferment on the registrant remaining in the upper half of his class. Satisfactory scholastic standing, rather than high standing, is the new condition.

Q How long would the deferment last?

A It would end when the student completed his undergraduate work, left school or reached age 24, whichever comes first. But if he became 24 in the middle of an academic year, he would be allowed to complete the year.

Q What would happen after a student completes his undergraduate work or becomes 24?

A He immediately returns to the pool of registrants most likely to be inducted and would remain in that status for one year.

Q Could such a student get another deferment?

A The new law says there shall be no further deferment except for extreme hardship. It would be up to his local draft board to decide whether he merits a hardship deferment. Being a husband or father would not give him an automatic deferment.

Q Does the proposed new student deferment procedure apply only to future students or does it affect those already in school?

A It would apply to all. A student who becomes 24 before completing his four years of undergraduate work?

A He would be eligible for immediate induction.

Rule Seminoles Owned Florida

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Seminoles Indians, losers in a bloody battle more than a century ago that ended with their eviction from their Florida homeland, have scored what could be a very profitable victory in court.

A U. S. Claims Court ruled Friday the Seminoles have established their legal ownership of almost all of Florida.

The court said the Indians must be paid for 32 million acres—a decision that could cost the U. S. government about $40 million. The courts unanimous decision still could be appealed to the Supreme Court.

When the United States got Florida from Spain in 1821, the Seminoles hunted and fished over most of the land. They were forced to occupy a four-million-acre reservation two years later and awarded $152,500 for the 28 million acres they lost.

The Indians rebelled when the government later tried to move them to an Oklahoma reservation. Joined by runaway Negro slaves, they battled federal troops for seven years, killing 1,500 U. S. soldiers.

No treaty ever was signed. But 3,824 Seminoles and Negroes finally were sent to Oklahoma while other Indians fled into the Florida Everglades. An estimated 1,300 Seminoles now live there.

The government argued the Indians originally owned only a small part of Florida. But the Claims Court said actual possession need not be proved to show they had rightful title to most of Florida.

THE COLORFUL WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT

FULL WEEK'S TV LISTINGS FOR WEEK OF JUNE 11th THRU JUNE 17th

For the first time, the "National College Queen Pageant" enjoys an hour-long colorcast, Friday, June 16, on NBC. Robert Goulet is host-narrator for the program, during which aptitudes of the entrants are reviewed, and the winner announced.

National College Queen Gala Brightens Home Screens Next Friday

By DON ROYAL

NEW YORK

If you were asked to describe the most outstanding college girl in the entire United States, what would you say?

Across the nation on Friday evening, June 16, people sitting in their homes watching television will have an unusual opportunity — they will meet the girl who has earned this title.

In a one-hour NBC-TV colorcast originating at New York's Rockefeller Center, 10-11 p. m. Eastern time, the "National College Queen Pageant" will serve to introduce 50 young ladies, one from each state.

Robert Goulet will serve as host and narrator as the contestants conclude an intensive 10 days, during which time they will have proven their scholastic achievements, leadership qualities, community service activities, their poise, attractiveness, good grooming, and skills in the home-making arts. The setting for the program: a coronation ball.

You will see them as they were tested and scored in competitive events during a ten-day pageant in New York. The "National College Queen Pageant" tests the knowledge, attitudes, and ideas of these young people — all of whom are between the ages of 18 and 22.

Distinguished educators serve as panelists, and they also conduct and judge the forums. Written tests and essays are scored by editors, publishers, and diplomats. Open discussions are conducted town-meeting style, as the girls are asked their opinions on a wide range of topics. Points are awarded, and the final top winner in the competition will be announced during the last few minutes of the NBC television program.

In brief film clips the girls will indicate their perception in and awareness of current world problems, their tastes in the world of fashion and home decoration, their cooking abilities, and their safe driving habits.

The program serves to remind that our mothers of tomorrow are primarily concerned with higher education, not with miniskirts and LSD.

There will also be candid television coverage of "college girls being college girls," as they turn the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel into one big sorority house with their youthful vigor during brief respites from the grind of the contest.

Carefully selected on their own campuses by ballot, the individual state representatives in the 13th annual "National College Queen Pageant" appear in competition for the distinction of being selected the nation's outstanding college girl. Executive producers of the broadcast are two of television's top programming veterans, Alan Handley and Bob Wynn. The telecast will be produced and directed by Dick Schneider.

Sponsoring the competition, in which thousands of entries were submitted, is Best Foods, a division of Corn Products Company. The 50 state finalists will be escorted by cadets from the United States Merchant Marine Academy on the program, as they take part in the coronation ball.

Each of the young ladies was chosen as the outstanding student in her state. They come from all walks of life.

Some are mathematics or aeronautical engineering majors, others are studying in such diversified areas as clinical psychology, speech, education, sociology and psychology, philosophy, art, chemistry, the languages, creative writing and journalism, the sciences, social welfare — a cross-section of the ambitions and hopes of America's youth.

During the 10 days prior to the NBC-TV show, the 50 national finalists will have discussed education, campus life, current events, literature, fashions, career goals, and many other subjects — all on their way to the goal of recognition as the nation's outstanding college girl.

SOON TO RELINQUISH her crown is Vicki R. Lieberstein, National College Queen for 1966. Vicki at the same of her coronation, was a Freshman majoring in languages at U.C.L.A. Los Angeles. The '67 Queen comes into her own Friday June 16 — NBC — Colorcast 10-11 p. m. Eastern Time.

TV Questions & Answers

TEN AND OUT — Memories being what they are, we have been trying to name 10 programs that went off the air the first part of last season and have been unable to do so. Can you help?—Len Sloane, Portland, Ore.

(1) Milton Berle, (2) Gary Moore, (3) Roger Miller, (4) Jean Arthur, (5) Run, Buddy, Run, (6) The Rounders, (7) The Monroes, (8) Shane, (9) The Hero, (10) Hawk.

HAPPY JUNE DAYS — Can you list five TV stars who were born in the month of June?—J. W., Miami, Fla.

Andy Griffith (June 1), Jim Nabors (12), Bud Collyer (18), June Lockhart (25) and Bob Keeshan. (Captain Kangaroo) (27).

NO OPINION — A short time ago you answered a question about the top 10 TV shows and you did not include Gunsmoke and I can't understand why since it is the best on TV today.—A. F. Williamstown, W. Va.

That answer concerned the top 10 programs according to A. C. Nielsen Company ratings, which is generally accepted as the guideline for the industry. There was no opinion involved.

PRESIDENTS — I understand that each network has its own separate News Division which operates independently from the network. Can you tell me if this is true and who is in charge of each?—G. F., Peoria.

In principle, what you say is true although human and or political elements can enter the situation and bend that principal slightly. The heads of each unit are: Richard Salant, president, CBS News; William R. McAndrew, president, NBC News; and Elmer W. Lower, president, ABC News.

GLEASON'S CAVALCADE — Didn't Jackie Gleason have another show on ABC or NBC before moving to CBS? I think it, too, was on Saturday nights.—J. J., Hartford, Conn.

Jackie's initial success was the Cavalcade of Stars, on the now defunct DuMont Television Network.

REAL TEEN-AGER—Exactly how old is Kathy Garver of Family Affair? She is so genuine in her role that I often feel she must be an accomplished actress long out of her teens.—O. C., Miami, Fla.

On Dec. 13, Kathy will be 19 years old.

QUICK COUNT—Can you help with a long-time problem concerning the number of feathers on the NBC Peacock? It doesn't stay on long enough to count them.—B. Basright, Elizabeth, N. C.

Imagine what a problem you would have if NBC used a real peacock which has over 50 filmy tail feathers instead of their version, which has only 11.

"TV sure does separate the men from the boys. I notice your dad and uncle have both left the room!"

THIS IS HOW IT ALWAYS IS—A panorama of dreams for entrants in a talent-beauty contest. Here, Suzanne Schillo, the 1966 New York State College Queen, is shown as she scanned the magic towers of Manhattan during her reign. This year's "National College Queen Pageant" airs NBC Friday June 16, 10-11 p. m. Eastern Time.

The program reviews their intensive working week in New York, and viewers will also see some of them on their home campuses as they prepare to leave for the Pageant, and during backstage visits to Broadway shows, Radio City Music Hall, the United Nations, and of course the traditional boat ride around Manhattan.

Music has been scored by Harper MacKay, a veteran of the Danny Thomas specials,

"Alice Through the Looking Glass" and the recent "Jimmy Durante Show," to mention but a few of his credits. He'll also contribute some original music to "National College Queen Pageant."

This will mark the first year that the competition has had an entire program devoted to it. In earlier years, the girls appeared individually on various television programs, but never before have the competitive events been covered by the network television.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED WANT AD . . .

1. IT'S always best to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, start your advertisement with the location and/or town or city in which it is located.
2. BE clear. Readers respond more quickly and favorably.
3. MAKE it easy for the reader-prospect to reach you, when given complete or definite information.

Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects contact you.

4. THE greatest reader attention can be secured by your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe—a six-day order is best and the rate is lower! You can stop your ad when you get results and the charge will be adjusted to the appropriate rate.
5. PLACE yourself in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know (about your offer). The answer you give will make a good Classified Want Ad.
6. WANT ads that fail to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they are often carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

In Training

A brand new to television actor named Wayne Maunder will be playing the title role in Custer on AB-TV next season. Before the series begins filming, Maunder is going through ground training, which includes riding lessons. And he hates horses. He was picked for the role because he resembles photos of the young, post-Civil War Custer. Maunder has had mostly stage experience, traveling with the the National Shakespeare Company and playing roles in "Othello," "Hamlet," "Henry VII" and "Julius Caesar." He has only been on TV once in a small role in The Monroes.

A Cerf Pun

A place called Lion Country Safari, in which wild animals roam in recreations of their native habitat, will open in Palm Beach, Fla., next month. The president of the project, Harry Shuster, was talking about his project to Bennett Cerf, who said he thought the place would make a great TV series. "You could call it What's My Lion," Cerf said. (With puns like that, some may think it best to keep Cerf boarded up.)

A Great Memory

Roger Moore, the suave Englishman who plays The Saint on NBC-TV, has a great memory for bad reviews that he has read about his fellow actors. "It's a great failure of humans that we can remember all the bad reviews we read, but we can't remember the good ones, unless they are our own. And as I've had none, I don't remember any." He's joking, of course, since he has had several good reviews.

'Wild Kingdom'
To Return for Sixth Season

V. J. Skutt, board chairman and chief executive of Mutual of Omaha, today announced that the firm will again sponsor its award winning television program, Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom. The program will return to NBC-TV for its sixth season on Sunday, Jan. 7, 1968. It is scheduled to be telecast in a new time zone, 6:30 p. m. EST.

A recipient of an Emmy at the recent awards ceremonies sponsored by the Television Academy of Arts and Sciences, Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom has compiled an impressive list of awards in its five-year history.

In addition to two Emmy awards, 1966 and again this year, Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom has also received the Golden Eagle award from the Council on non-Theatrical Events, the Chris Award at the Columbus Film Festival, and a special award of merit from the American Association for Conservation Information. In April of 1965 the Boy Scouts of America presented a citation of appreciation to the program's producers, and in 1964 the Radio-TV Daily Annual Poll rated Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom as one of the top six "Children's Shows of the Year."

Endorsed by a number of educators, the familiar format of the program, the study of animals in their natural habitat, will remain the same. Marlin Perkins, world-famed naturalist and curator of the Lincoln Park Zoo in St. Louis, Mo., will host the program.

Wet McClure Speaks Out

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—In the slang of the studios, the big lights are called "brutes." They are designed to flood a set with brightness, but they have another use, and that's what one brute was being used for on the set of "The Winning Position" at Universal.

This is a comedy about a naval engagement and they were shooting a storm at sea. The set included part of a ship—the USS Bustard—which was set on a platform that rocked with a seelike motion. The storm was man-made, sprinklers overhead and hoses underneath supplying the water and huge wind machines whipping it into the faces of the actors.

Between takes, they ran off to one side, into the beam of the brute. The heat of the huge lamp dried them off somewhat, before they had to go back and face the moisture again.

The actors—Doug McClure and Gary Vinson and David Hartman and James Whitmore and Jim Creech and others—were wet and tired and a few had the pale green look of seasickness on their soggy faces. But they were trying to keep their spirits up with humor. It wasn't easy.

They talked of other things. Jim Creech said he was afraid of flying.

"You shouldn't be," said Steve Carlson, shivering. "Trains are worse. Didn't you read about that train the other day—92 killed."

"What happened?" asked Creech.

"Oh, a plane crashed into it," said Carlson.

Then they went back to work. McClure had to enter the scene on a bos'n's chair, slung from ropes, supposedly as he was being rescued from a sinking vessel off camera. He didn't look wet enough to suit director Alan Rafkin, so they turned the hoses on him. He didn't look happy.

Rafkin is another ex-television director and he's very happy with the way things are going in the feature film area.

"After television," he says, "doing this picture—even if it has only a 22-day shooting schedule—seems to me like 'Cleopatra.'"

Nancy Kwan, who wasn't in the scene, came by to watch her waterlogged colleagues. Rafkin greeted her with a low bow—"Hello, Nancy-San," he said, confusing his Oriental accents somewhat but producing a smile on Nancy's exquisite face.

She talked about Hong Kong, where her family lives—she and her husband make their home in Australia—and about how popular movies are in Hong Kong. She says she thinks the per capita movie attendance is higher there than anywhere on earth—"all they do is go to the movies," she says.

During the lunch break, McClure dried himself off and took a precautionary antacid pill.

He talked about marriage; he's something of an expert, being presently on his third.

"Marriage is ridiculous," he said. "It's getting to be a bum deal. It's an institution designed for women, but it's unnatural for men."

"And it's especially rough on an actor. An actor's wife just has to be jealous—all the young girls who hang around her husband. It's tough if the wife is an actress—the competition thing. That's what happened with me and Barbara (his second wife, actress Barbara Luna). And it's just as tough if the wife isn't an actress (his present wife, Helen, is a nonpro) because she can't understand why you're so tired when you come home."

"But divorce is no answer. Divorce puts a guy through the tubes. I've been there twice and I know."

He was dry now and relaxed and then it was time to go back and get soaked again.

Old Stuff

There's so much movie production in New York at the moment that even the hot dog vendors are getting blasé. A TV commercial producer hired a hot dog vendor to do a scene with four beautiful models. He was asked if this gave him a thrill, and he said, no he had done a similar scene with Mary Tyler Moore and George Peppard the week before. They are filming a movie, "What's So Bad About Feeling Good?" in New York.

Michael Dunn; Little Man; Big Outlook

HOLLYWOOD—Michael Dunn, the little man with the big outlook on life, was on another of his frequent trips to the West Coast. He was finishing up TV roles at CBS and 20th Century-Fox.

Dunn is perhaps best known to TV audiences for his "evil Dr. Loveless" role on Wild, Wild West, and to movie fans for his Academy Award nominated narrator role in "Ship of Fools."

"If I keep getting more acting assignments here I'll be in trouble says Dunn. "There just aren't any good saloons where you can be with friends and just sit and talk. Everybody here is too busy playing the game."

The "game" Dunn refers to is that affliction of Hollywood society that compels most actors to be seen everywhere. Dunn, a self-admitted "semantics nut," would much rather seek some hideaway and while away the hours discussing acting, producers and business agents, and talking about his favorite people, like George C. Scott and Spencer Tracy.

"Producers generally are not men of imagination," he shrugs. "In a Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea I'm Dr. Loveless again. Same role, big deal."

"I know my craft well," says Dunn, who dazzled Broadway in "Ballad of the Sad Cafe" and toured in a nightclub act with his wife. "I'm disciplined. I know what to do. When I see myself on TV or something that doesn't work it immediately goes in my file, usually prefaced with the remark, 'Oh God, not again!'"

Lack of properties admittedly hindered one of Dunn's stature, but he's with a new agent now and things are looking brighter.

About agents and producers: "You know, the hand-holders at times are such a wasteful part of the business. Here's a midget part," they say. Mike's available. Then they soft-soap me about what a great client I am. I don't want to play Charlton Heston parts. But there are a lot of roles I can do."

About choice of roles: "I still remember a hot, three-minute scene in East Side, West Side. Now here was a cameo role that was not written for my size. I'm a guy swabbing the decks of a john, and George C. Scott and a friend come in talking about the death of a newspaper and its effect on the common man. And I challenged them, 'Who asked me how I felt about it?' We were eye-to-eye in the argument. It was great!"

Embarrassed!

Steve Allen, who will have a summer series on CBS-TV, says his most embarrassing moment as a panelist on What's My Line came when he removed his blindfold and didn't recognize the Mystery Guest.

MICHAEL DUNN

About George C. Scott: "Ah, George. That marvelous face of his that looks like it was blasted out of the side of a mountain. He is one of the good iconoclasts. Great style, a good friend and a lousy chess player."

About Spencer Tracy: "The first person I ever saw on the movie screen that I loved as a person. I finally met him one day on a set. We sat in chairs and Spence talked to me like a colleague. The reverence of that man, you instinctively felt close. One of the few beautiful people of the world."

Shirley Booth
Forgets All
Her Failures

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD—Shirley Booth, an Emmy nominee for her performance last December in the TV version of The Glass Menagerie, was about to leave for her annual summer vacation on Cape Cod and, for Shirley, the year's most improbable casting. Shirley Booth as a frustrated actress?

That's what she will be playing for two weeks in a Cape Cod summer theatre revival of an old Broadway hit, "The Torch Bearers."

Even Shirley had to laugh. As an actress I have trepidations but no frustrations."

Her departure for the Cape had been delayed by the TV taping for next fall of CBS Playhouse's production of Loring Mandel's 90-minute original drama, "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night." Shirley and Melvyn Douglas replaced Florence Eldridge and Frederic March in the color special when March became ill.

As an actress, Shirley Booth may have trepidations, but in her scheme of things there is a strong affection between Shirley and role. "I fall in love with characters," she explains. "I have to feel about them like I do about good friends."

But no actress can be always right and Shirley is no exception. As an actress, she has this problem beat, too. She refuses to remember her mistakes. "That's why I'm so happy," she beams, "I forget my failures."

But when you know Shirley Booth you know that unlike most actresses she can be happy even when she isn't acting. She paints, gardens and refinishes furniture alternating between four homes—one in Beverly Hills, another in Palm Springs, an apartment in New York and a cottage on Cape Cod.

"Honest," she says, "I can find great joy in cleaning out a closet. I love to do lots of things. It makes failure so pleasant."

After five years in the series she's still in love with Hazel. And Hazel, although now canceled still plays a big role in her life.

At a party recently a woman she didn't know came up to her and said, "Oh, Hazel, you know what I'm going to do—I'm going to ask my husband to give me a Hazel for a Christmas present. Not because I need a maid, but because I want to put my head on her shoulder so I can have a good cry."

Another TV series for Shirley?

"Not right away," she says. "They keep thinking of me as Hazel and I like to vary my roles."

Mark Twain's daughter married Ossep Gabrilowitsch, noted orchestra conductor.

SHIRLEY BOOTH

Repeats Role

Lennie Weinrib, who was on The Red Skelton Hour recently, once worked CBS in Hollywood as a tour guide. And what kind of a role did he have on Skelton's show? An usher at CBS. Skelton also proved he has a great memory, because when he saw Lennie in his CBS usher's uniform, he said, "Oh, you're back in uniform, huh?"

Fools No One

News report from a Hollywood spy: "Doris Day will do anything to seek anonymity. I saw her bicycling down a Beverly Hills street this morning in knee-high pink socks, white tennis shoes, pink shorts suit, pink hat-scarf and dark glasses. How could you miss her? No one could, or did."

Fritz Weaver

Weaver Defends Americans

By JOAN CROSBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — (NEA)—Fritz Weaver, whose proven acting talent allows him to speak without any trace of sour grapes, feels the American public is too hard on American actors.

He's a bit tired of the fact that the public seems to think American actors are not so good as English actors.

Because the British are trained in the classics, they are spoken of with awe in many theatrical circles. "They have more opportunities to play classics. That's not a path that is open to most American actors or they would take it."

Weaver is one of the Americans who has been trained in classical theater. For the past 10 years he has been asked to participate in the Stratford, Conn., Shakespear Festival.

"But that's not the 'hot' part of the theater in America. In England it is.

"And to say that British actors are superior in the use of their voices is to minimize the situation. American poets talk like American cab drivers whereas the average Englishman has inflections that range over two octaves.

"I do think that American actresses are more viable than American actors. Uta Hagan, for instance, can do anything that any English actress can do with her voice and in performance."

So come on, Americans, let's have a Be-Kind-to-American-Actors Week.

Dennis Cole, whose ABC-TV series, The Felony Squad, is one of the few survivors of a season in which series disappeared like secretaries at 5 o'clock, is a pretty happy young man, being tall, handsome, suntanned and all that.

But he does have one tiny complaint about his series. "I just keep thinking we should have more girls on the show. It's getting so Howard Duff is beginning to look pretty good to me around 8 o'clock at night."

Dennis is a young man very good at a put-on, who will occasionally make a statement, followed by "That was a lie."

But his story goes something like this, if he wasn't kidding:

"I went to California from my home in Detroit to be a musician. I started working in the business as a sideline musician. And I became engrossed in the methods of performers. So I switched to working as an extra, then as a stunt man, then a stand-in and I learned a lot. Then I went to school to learn to act and everything finally fell in place very nicely. After six years I got a job."

TWENTY-FIVE DROP - OUTS
—Will you kindly list all of the series going off the air this fall.—Steven Warren, Murfreesboro, N. C.

Gladly, or sadly, as the case may be. They are: Hey Landlord, It's About Time, Candid Camera, What's My Line, Captain Nice, The Road West, To Tell the Truth, I've Got a Secret, Gilligan's Island, Mr. Terrific, Occasional Wife, The Girl from U.N.C.L.E., Combat, The Fugitive, The Chrysler Theatre, The Phyllis Diller Show, Danny Kay Show, The Monroes, F Troop, The Green Hornet, Time Tunnel, T.H.E. Cat, Please Don't Eat the Daisies, Pistols 'n' Petticoats and Laredo.

Refused Role

Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater recently repeated a Western called Massacre at Fort Phil Kearney. The role which was played by Richard Egan was first offered to Edmond O'Brien, who liked the scripts. But he had to refuse the part when he heard the location scenes were to be filmed at Mount Pines, altitude 9,000 feet. High altitudes are hard on his heart. Universal got a letter from the Department of Interior commending them for their authenticity in doing a true story. Some dramatic liberties were taken, but the characters and events were real. In life, Col. Carrington (the role played by Egan) spent the rest of his life trying to clear his name.

Movies Sexier?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Are movies Sexier than ever? Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, side-stepped the question at a news conference Thursday:

"I agree that our society is sexier than ever.

"Movies are a reflection of society. Movies are more honest than ever.

"I don't find movies are any more sensual than the general society."

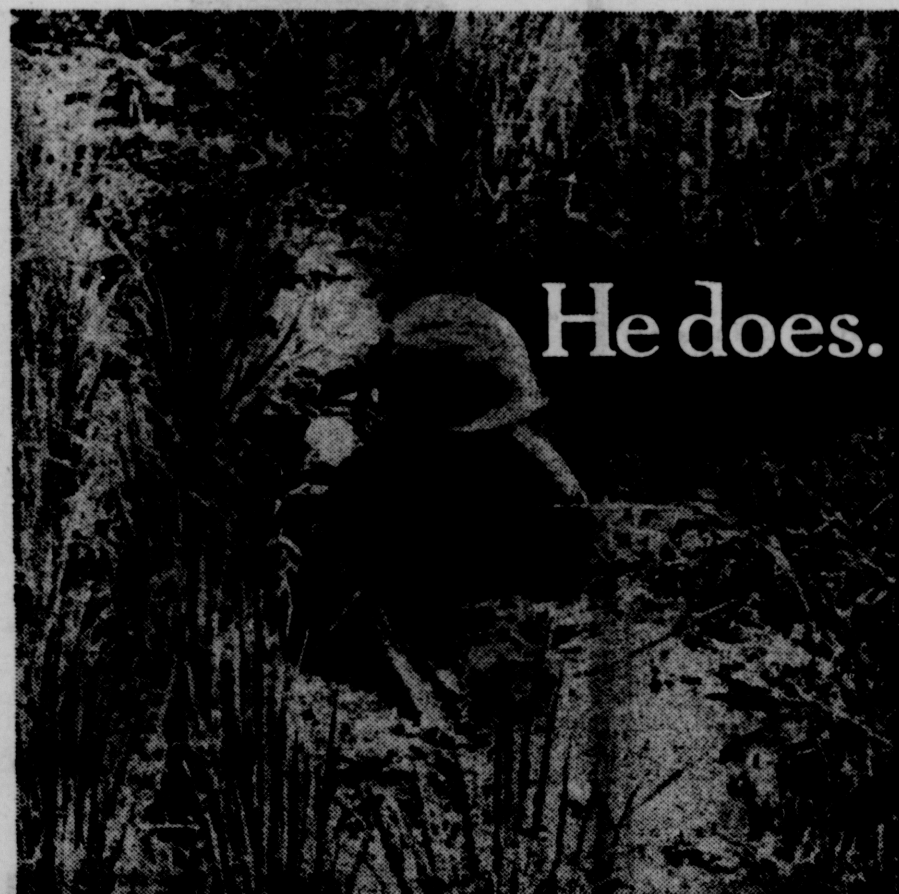

Not Happy

Twentieth Century-Fox, which is producing Custer on ABC-TV, is not happy that it is going to be telecast opposite Lost in Space on CBS-TV. That, too, is a Fox production.

Fired and Re-Hired

Buddy Greco, costar with George Carlin on CBS-TV's Away We Go, (Jackie Gleason's summer replacement), says that during his three years with Benny Goodman, he was fired by Goodman 12 times. "But he always hired me right back."

Buy Bonds where you work.

It's miserable work, crawling through a rice paddy. And being shot at. This American does the job for freedom's sake. So do thousands of his buddies. Many of these brave men also support freedom with their dollars. A majority of our servicemen overseas are investing in U.S. Savings Bonds. Would you like to show this man you're with him? One good way is to buy Savings Bonds where you bank or join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. You'll make a good investment. And you'll walk a bit taller.

U.S. Savings Bonds

Bond facts: Savings Bonds pay you back $4 for every $3 at maturity in only seven years . . . are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen . . . have special tax advantages . . . can be redeemed whenever the need arises.

Those Hits Can Really Help

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Listen to Ed Ames on the subject "What a Difference a Hit Record Makes":

"In the beginning you keep knocking on doors and after a lot of hard work you get your foot in the door. Your foot gets squashed from time to time, but the door is partly open. Suddenly you have a hit record and those doors fly open."

Ed's hit is "My Cup Runneth Over," and both a single and an RCA Victor album of that name are top sellers. Today he can walk down New York's Fifth Avenue and find his album prominently displayed in one of the street's most influential book and record stores. That proves he has a hit.

To capitalize on his suddenly becoming a big seller in the record field (a difficult chore for Ed, because he sings beautifully and that's a handicap these days), RCA has rushed another single, "Time, Time," into the stores, to be followed by an album (his seventh) of the same name, set for June release.

Ed is at a crucial point in his career, "but I know exactly where I want to go."

Next season he will make fewer appearances as Mingo on NBC-TV's Daniel Boone, leaving him free to pursue his plan. "I want to do two feature films. For three years I haven't been able to go on extended concert tours, and I want to do that. The plan is to consolidate my career and then, next season, return to Broadway. That's where life was happiest. But I'm only going to return if the role is right. There aren't many men's shows today. Most of the musicals are built around women — 'Hello Dolly,' 'Sweet Charity,' 'Mame' — and men's roles in shows like that are not my cup of tea."

With Ed's rugged good looks, acting and singing ability, even his cup of tea should runneth over.

Mary Grover is trying to be patient, but it's easy to understand why she keeps getting attacks of pins and needles.

Mary is tall, young, blond and the kind of pretty face which needs very little assistance from make-up. On the evening of May 7, on ABC-TV she was seen as Robert Goulet's leading lady in a new two-hour production of "Carousel."

"I've been told I have to be patient, because it took eight months for me to get "Carousel" after I was seen in a production of Leonard Bernstein's 'Candide' at U.C.L.A. Sometimes it takes much longer than eight months, so I'm just glad the break has come.

"I don't know what I'll do next, because I want to see how the show is received. I'm keeping myself open and available, and I'm hoping to get some good guest spots on TV because of 'Carousel.'"

Mary, who uses her married name (she was born Mary McFarland, a proud second-generation Californian), is a former member of the Roger Wagner Chorale. She also toured in a night club act with Tony Martin. She is studying opera and has a lyric-coloratura voice. "But to be an opera singer means you have to stop everything else. And I don't want to do that."

Keeps Limber

Buddy Greco, of CBS-TV's summer series, Away We Go, couldn't afford a piano at one time. So for two years he kept his fingers limber running them over a keyboard pasted on a table. "I ran the risk of picking up splinters," he said, "but at least I didn't disturb the neighbors."

No Opportunity

Grace Lee Whitney was quietly dropped from the cast of Star Trek, because the stories didn't offer her much opportunity to do more than walk on. The producers originally planned to have her more involved and when this didn't occur, they reluctantly dropped her option.

On Same Plane

The appearance of Ozzie and Harriet Nelson on The Red Skelton Hour was a result of Ozzie and Red discovering themselves on the same plane east. Red said to Ozzie: "How come you've never been on my Show?" and Ozzie replied, "Because you've never asked me."

Van Cleef Face Made Many Films

By FRANK LANGLEY

NEW YORK — The two teen-age girls waiting for celebrities in front of the CBS "black rock" in New York, raced into action as soon as the tall, moustached and fierce-eyed actor came through the door.

"Oooh, may we have your autograph?" they beseeched in harmony, and were quickly rewarded with a smile, a handshake, and a splash of writing in their autograph book.

As the actor sauntered away, one young lady said to the other: "What's his name?" and the other immediately replied, "I don't know."

Lee Van Cleef is one of a hundred or so top actors and actresses who to most of the public, are faces without names. And their faces are as familiar and as immediately recognizable as John Wayne or Cary Grant.

Oddly enough, Van Cleef has made 47 films from "High Noon" to "How the West was Won," and 150 television appearances from Perry Mason to Laredo, and remains a nameless face to most Americans.

But in Italy, where he has made just four films, Signor Van Cleef is a name to be reckoned with.

"The success of those Italian films has been far beyond anyone's expectations," Van Cleef was saying over a noontime breakfast. "The one that started it all, 'A Fistful of Dollars' with Clint Eastwood, has already grossed $4 million in Italy alone."

It was that success that sent Italian director Sergio Leone to Hollywood looking for "interesting faces" for future films. One of the faces he settled on was Van Cleef.

Leone's judgment proved perfect for Lee's first Italian effort, titled "For a Few Dollars More," doubled the first film's figure, grossing $8 million Italian dollars.

"I have my own theory about why these pictures are making such an impact over there," the actor said.

"Italians are used to a lot of words in these movies. It can take them two pages of dialogue just to order a drink.

"But the American cowboy says very little and does quite a lot.

"I think the Italians enjoy the contrast."

Van Cleef is undergoing a change in character through the foreign films as well as getting the name to go with his face.

Unlike the twisted killer of "High Noon" or the sadist groveling under Gregory Peck's boots in "The Bravados," he is a sympathetic bounty-hunter in "For a Few Dollars More." And in his latest, as yet untitled effort, he even gets to be the hero.

How far can the change go? "I've even been thinking about situation comedy," he said, "but I'm not sure if a producer would be willing to gamble on that.

"I may have to produce that one myself." And he probably will.

Not Enough Time; Problem For David Rose

By STAN MAAYS

HOLLYWOOD—David Rose is a difficult man to catch up with these days. He's always on the go.

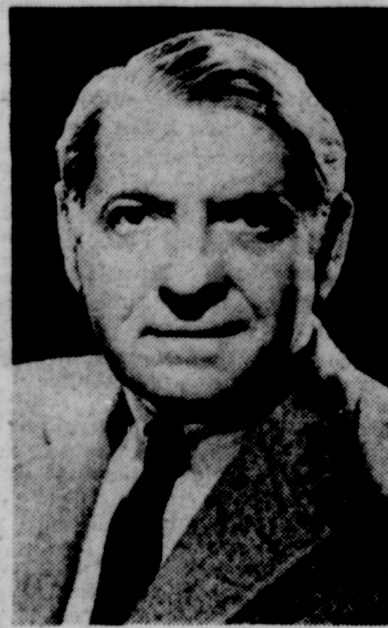

The eminently successful composer-arranger was working "overtime" finishing up the Red Skelton season, the tapings being delayed by the recent AFTRA strike. This past season he worked on Bonanza, The Monroes and Skelton's show. The latter being something of a career job alone — his 16th year.

Rose is also laboring on a new movie, mostly nights because there just isn't enough time during days. And on weekends he's just got to devote some time to those two celebrated hobbies of his, collecting railroad steam engines and coal-burning steamboats.

"I always work at home," said the weary looking, 56-year-old musician as he settled down for brief respite at CBS-TV. "I've never been able to adjust to working in an office or studio."

"So this is the sanctum where all that great music comes from.

"Are you kidding? Sanctum?" questions Rose. "It's a bedlam at home what with the kids and phone interruptions.

"But I know I've got a job to do and this is where I want to work. As to being inspired when composing, there's no special magic involved, you just sit down and do it."

Rose pinpoints the big problem in his business: "It's time. There's never enough of it. 'When can we have it?' is the thing I hear most."

Some of this pressure is of his own making, Rose admits.

For NBC's Bonanza, now in its eighth year, he composes a fresh musical score each week. It's easier, he claims, to write a new score than to keep a file on all that music. On The Monroes series he used slightly different variations of the four basic themes (to match story points) he composed for the series.

"But the Skelton show, that's something else," said Rose with a shudder and a smile. "If I read the script ahead of time I'm in trouble. It's a waste of time. Everything changes."

"Red or the producer will decide to do something else, and rewrite the script on the spot. Then they usually come over to me, after musicians and their arrangements are all set, give me a funny look and say, 'Dave, we're afraid to tell you this, but . . . and I'd have to change the music on the spot."

"It's gotten so that I've had to make one compromise with myself here at TV City. I keep a library so I can dip into it for quick arrangements. It's the only way I can keep up with the constant script changes."

Little wonder Red Skelton has always greeted Rose with a handshake every day of those years they've worked together. He owes him a lot.

A HAIR OF DIFFERENCE separates New York's senators, Republican Jacob Javits, left and Democrat Robert F. Kennedy, right, in matters other than their political posture. Seen at Javits' birthplace on New York's teeming lower East Side, the two displayed their contrasts in background, mood, and even haircuts.
